BRAVEST DEED OF THE YEAR

Award To Naval Officer

(Special Air Mail Service).

London, Feb. 16.
The annual general court of the Royal Humane Society, over which Admiral Cresswell J. Eyres presided, awarded the Stanhope gold medal for 1934 for the "bravest deed of the year" to Lieutenant Hugh N. A. Richardson, R.N., for saving the life of a seaman who fell overboard from H.M.S. Wolfhound while at anchor in Lamslash Harbour during squally weather.

The incident happened during the darkness of the early morning of January 7 last year. Two life-buoys that were thrown to the seaman failed to reach him. Lieutenant Richardson threw off his overcoat and seaboots, dived fully clothed, and on reaching the man tried in vain to tow him to the nearest buoy. He swam back for a buoy, which he placed under the seaman's shoulders, while he himself grasped one of the buoys. Lieutenant Richardson assisted to get the seaman into a boat, and in so doing lost his hold of the life-buoy and was swept again leeward into the darkness. When the boat found him 10 minutes later nearly half a mile from the ship he was in a very exhausted condition. The boat, unable to make headway against wind and sea, had to be beached.

Silver medals were awarded to the following:—All Akbar, who plunged into the Ichbar River, North-West India, while it was in heavy flood, and rescued a coolie who had been swept off his feet into the stream; Juma Kalanzi, who fought a crocodile and forced it to release a native boy it had seized and was submerging in the Nile on August 16; and Jack Richards, who rescued two men from a heavy sea in Lee Bay, Devon.

The annual report stated that 551 cases had been dealt with during the year, an increase of 59 over 1933; and 671 persons had received recognition in the form of a medal or other award for saving 578 lives, and attempting to save 63 persons who were drowned or succumbed to foul gas. The cases were distributed as follows:—England, 379; Wales, 42; Scotland, 50; Ireland, 31; India and the Dominions, 33; and foreign countries or at sea, 6.

ROYAL ARSENAL TO BE MOVED

Safer Place Inland
Desirable

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 16.
The War Office Committee which for some months has been examining the question of removing the Royal Arsenal from Woolwich to a safer place inland has finished its work.

The result of the inquiry is to point to the desirability under existing conditions, of removing part at least of the Arsenal from Woolwich.

The report of the Committee will be considered by the Committee of Imperial Defence and finally by the Cabinet, which will decide what shall be done.

This is the fourth inquiry into the subject. The first three inquiries resulted in decisions to retain the Arsenal at Woolwich. But circumstances have changed materially since then.

The Air Menace

The present Committee has examined the question in the light of the enormous air developments in recent years, our own marked inferiority in the air, and the present vulnerability of the great Arsenal to air attack even to long-range gunfire, from the Continent.

Every consideration of strategy, defence, and finance, the cost of removing the Arsenal to a safer place would be very considerable—has been weighed and presented for Cabinet consideration.

But the determining factor, overshadowing all others, is the air menace.

The vital importance of the Arsenal to the defensive organisations of the country is unquestionable. During the war 110,000 workpeople were employed there, and at that time it was the objective of bombing planes and Zeppelins.

Blow to Woolwich It—

At present, according to the latest official figures available, about 7,500 people are employed there. In 1933 the Arsenal paid £1,167,000 in wages.

It is estimated that the Arsenal is the mainstay of something like 30,000 people. Obviously its removal, wholly or in part, would be a serious blow to the business of Woolwich.

This is an important aspect of the matter which will be carefully considered. So also is the great expansion of Woolwich as a residential area, "and the air risk to a large civilian population consequent upon the presence among them of a great arsenal which would be the object of concentrated assault from air."

subscriber service for the whole country will be installed.

Musical Signals

However, on dialling TRU, one will be connected direct with the trunk operator, who will obtain the number, thus eliminating the conversations between the home and distant operators which waste so much time at present.

The utmost ingenuity has had to be exercised to make this "inter-zone" dialling possible. The signal given by dialling is converted into a combination of musical tones, which is transmitted over the wires and made to select the number at the other end.

The difficulty is that very little of the musical scale is now left unoccupied for sending such signals. The musical tone system is used in a simpler form between manual and automatic exchanges already, and telex, teleprinter, and picture-transmission services all demand their own frequencies required for this service.

TRUNK CALLS BY DIALLING

British Tests After
3 Years' Research

British Post Office engineers are working on an invention to enable a man in, say, London to dial the number of a man in, say, Aberdeen, and get the subscriber direct without further human intervention.

After three years' work the problem has reached the experimental stage, and it is anticipated that the first services under the new system will be installed this year.

Its introduction will mean a great speeding-up in obtaining calls, and the saving of an incalculable amount of time and money for the Post Office.

It is not intended to put the dialling of trunk calls directly into the hands of subscribers in England since a single subscriber might, for example, monopolize an important trunk channel for a long period on the cheap one-shilling rate.

But the system will mean an extension of dialling facilities in individual localities, while in some smaller European countries, notably Holland, a subscriber to subscriber service for the whole country will be installed.

However, on dialling TRU, one will be connected direct with the trunk operator, who will obtain the number, thus eliminating the conversations between the home and distant operators which waste so much time at present.

The utmost ingenuity has had to be exercised to make this "inter-zone" dialling possible. The signal given by dialling is converted into a combination of musical tones, which is transmitted over the wires and made to select the number at the other end.

The difficulty is that very little of the musical scale is now left unoccupied for sending such signals. The musical tone system is used in a simpler form between manual and automatic exchanges already, and telex, teleprinter, and picture-transmission services all demand their own frequencies required for this service.

The problem is the musical parallel of that encouraged in fitting all the radio-stations of Europe into the available wave-band, as in each case they cannot be given wave-lengths too close together.

THE MARINA HAT

One of the advantages of the fashionable "pork-pie," or "Princess Marina," hat is that it can be made of little or no special cost from shapings of velvet, silk, or cloth. Even a scarf of firm texture, may be used. Take an old hat or, if none is available, buy a felt shape, cut off the crown where this joins the brim, and unless the colour is suitable cover it with thin silk. Cut a three to four inch wide strip of buckram, thin cardboard, or sheets of thick drawing paper pasted together, long enough to reach round the crown at the lower edge and a little longer at the top of each end. This extra length keeps the finished brim from tightening the crown. If a pointed effect is wanted, cut two pieces of the stiffening, each measuring half the circumference of the crown at the lower edge, and three-quarters of an inch wide at the top one. Bind the ends and join them without overlapping. Cover the resulting circle with the material chosen, bringing it well down inside, at the top, and making flat inverted pleats, or a fold, under the points. Line the inside with silk or muslin. Pull it over the crown and sew it in position from the inside of the crown. A little care will be necessary to avoid crumpling the brim while doing this. Decorate the hat with a feather or, if the crown is of felt, with a smart bow made from the original brim. The pointed brim really requires a somewhat peaked crown, and this is managed by pinching the latter lengthways and sewing the "pinch" together.

HATS FORM FOURS

Visors and sailors; pancakes and pillboxes; hats and turbans. We shall see all these this spring. And brims obey all the drill hall commands—forward march, upward stretch, downward bend, dismiss. But all these hats go into one of four classes. There are four important shapes—first, the square, projecting back; second, the crownless tambourine; third, the forward thrust; fourth, the wide off-the-face wings.

ENTER THE BOOKMAKERS DAUGHTER

The checked suit is back again. Paris-jokingly calls it the book-maker's daughter's suit—or the "Bookie" suit. The model is of black and white checked, wool, and has a second skirt of plain black wool, a grand idea, which doubles the suit's versatility.

A BLOUSE YEAR

It's a suit season. And what could be nicer? For that means lots of blouses, and they give you more fun and chic for the money than anything else you can think of. "Start the day in a striped linen blouse." Choose one in off-white or natural coloured, linen with stripes in many colours. Plaids are in for a success; plain coloured and "sub" weaves are other favourites. There is a wonderful choice of linens this year—some of them soft with a crepe feel; some "hot" flax linens, and more and more irresistible.

ROUND THE SHOPS

LANE CRAWFORD

Have just received a big selection of swimming costumes, all these are the well-known Jantzen wool suits, in the latest styles and colours. Most of these suits are backless and quite a number with the new square neck and back. The popular colours are yellow, royal blue and red. There was a brown and white in fancy knit with the new front lacing. Another very snappy suit was in red and white, with shorts and the separate Bandana tops, obtainable in all sizes and colours. To go with all these beautiful suits are a lot of new caps, prices from $1.25, with or without straps, and also special rubber linings under caps, to keep heads dry.

MAIZEE'S

Yesterday was a great day at Maizee's quite a few people were in, buying and admiring, the new spring goods, especially the snappy sports suits, and shorts of drill and other materials. They are just the thing for tennis and beach wear. Other new goods, were some very pretty washing dresses, and their new costume jewellery were stunning.

EVE

Eve is showing some very nice two-way stretch girdles, these are to be had in all different styles. Those who know the value and comfort of these girdles, will appreciate the new one. Also she has received some very pretty print dresses.

MAYOS

Hats this summer will be in all shapes, high and low crowns big brims and turbans; so if you are extra keen in getting something out of the ordinary, go to Mayo's the "Modern Hat Makers".

REVILLE

Reville in the Gloucester Arcade are glad to announce that they have been able to secure a special line of "maternity" gowns. It's a revolutionary dress—with no snaps, hooks or buttons, and it's about the neatest gown I've seen. You should also see the marvellous collection of cocktail dresses and evening gowns in her shop.

There was a very attractive gown in green silk crepe, studded with diamonds and had a yellow silk coat to go with it. Another very pretty dress in diaphanous yellow ripple satin with coatee to match. Reville would like to let her customers and readers know, that she receives new shipments 3 times a month.

EAR SHELLS

And Other Bright Ideas

There is a daring and dash about new dress jewellery. Ears are made provocative by gold and silver wings, which are clipped over the lobes.

Sometimes the new earrings, instead of being wings, are curled like a blunt scythe, and are then studded with tiny stones resembling turquoise, lapis, coral and jade. Tiny gold scallop shells clipping downward to the lobe of the ear are also worn.

Wood and Silver

So are half-ball earrings of gold—still clipped to the ear, and one amusing conceit is a semi-globe of wood surrounded by silver, and a touchwood mascot which Beauty says she never relinquishes, not even in her sleep.

Other earrings are of clear stones in coloured harmony. Thus blue and brownish coloured stone are worn together and green and white, is another favourite combination. The latter worn with a black dress is very smart. Amethysts and crystals are worn with brown—a triple alliance very attractive on an Englishwoman.

Important and amusing dress clips make new frocks most interesting. One from Paris which captivates and intrigues every masculine heart is in the shape of a tiny comedy mask. A mask such as this, clipped to a new sports suit of grey wool, looks most effective.

And altogether dashing are the wing clips of gold coloured metal. These are shaped like spreading pairs of wings. Feathers, too, are very popular in dress jewellery just now. One smart hat clip consists of a pair of flattened, spreading wings, studded with feather lines. It is paired with a slightly different and a pair wing clip, which is worn on the crown.

ANOTHER VICTORIAN REVIVAL

Return Of The Heart Shape Neckline

There is endless variety in the presenting of the different silhouettes. Every collection displays models proving the success of violent contrasts in corsages and skirts, trimming and tail-falls. The most pronounced changes and variety are declared in the silhouettes for evenings. The lower décolletage takes its cue from the correct cut for the coming Court, which is an immense improvement. The line is bold, either in a wide heart-shape or a low square. The "V" back is higher, and, if left bare, the best evening frocks have a wide fluffy cape, or a smartly semi-tailored sort of coatee, or a hard-defined capelet to complete. Later the evening corsage of the late nineties will be seen—simple, but free and sweeping lines that demand no trimming.

Backs in many cases are cut higher than the front décolletage, where the quaint fashion of the elongated spray or clustered posy reaching to the belt is in vogue. This lower line is more becoming than the "throttled-up-to-the-throat" draperies of last season. Another and always charming décolletage is the deep "V" with fichu drapery and above-the-elbow sleeve. The wider Victorian berthe is best with the cape-top or tiny puff.

Circular Skirt

The "come-back circular" skirt as interpreted by the modern dress artist can be fascinating. Slim and semi-fitting round the waist and hips, the debutantes' satin and silk skirts spring out above the knee into billowy godets.

A noted designer showed me a bridesmaid's gown of the new rich cream, rather stiff satin. The skirt fitted hips to the knees, then simply flung itself into foamy frilled godets all round, resting on the ground. The corsage, low and heart-shaped back and front, and caught by pearl shoulder-straps, was worn under a long-sleeved, short cut-away coat, fastening with a tiny basque and two large satin buttons. In a way this frock was practical, as it could be worn later for Ascot and would make a lovely dinner frock!

Colours and materials seem made for the debutante. Taffetas in pastel tones and apple-greens are for ball dresses. Many of them have the "umbrella skirt," and are trimmed with festoons and "frills" of coloured nets and laces. Satin and moire, both stiffened, are charmingly splashed with silver. Some moires have coloured contrasting threads woven in either silk or metal. A favourite way with the low "V" shaped décolletage is to give wide folds of its own fabric, or tissue, forming straps from the belt at waist, crossing back and front.

Some designers favour the net and lace evening frocks in pale shades, with deep frilly flounces and shoulder capes, thickly studded with sequins dyed to darker hues. White and palest grey nets show black and dark silver sparkles. These fluff additions take off any idea of age. No less lovely are the streamer princess moulded garments in a clinging crepe, satin, or rich brocade and lame. We can be classic and statuesque, austere Victorian, elegantly Edwardian, or an alliance of the "forties" and 1935.

Many Periods

Fabrics, styles, fashions and fancies are taken from many periods. It is the modern rendering of them, which will decide costume for this year. Every evening gown seems to be a picture in itself, but there is a marked difference between the "little" frock and the "grande toilette." The five o'clock to twelve simple and semi-tailored garment is a smart affair, but entirely apart from the dinner and dance dress.

SPECIAL FEATURE

Beauty Hints By Ann Harding

STAR OF "VERGIE WINTERS"

THE CARE OF THE SKIN

First of all, have mercy on your skin.

By this I mean give it a rest from make-up whenever possible. It is a good idea to refrain from putting on any form of make-up during hours at home. The pores need to breathe as much as the lungs, at times, and the benefit is great.

I firmly believe in make-up, but also that it should be sparingly used. It takes me only ten minutes to make up for pictures, against an average of an hour or so for some other players. This is because I have eliminated as much of the process as possible.

Don't think that the skin on the face is the only important part of you. I think everyone should take sun baths whenever possible. Next best to this, rest in the privacy of your bedroom unclothed. It is a very kind act on behalf of the skin.

Remember, too, that nearly all skin disorders come from internal causes. Don't waste money on hit or miss preparations in an endeavour to correct an unsightly condition. See your doctor if there is any real trouble.

And... never retire at night without removing any and all make-up. That is a command from one who wants everyone to be beautiful.

APPLY POWDER CAREFULLY

In this quest for beauty there are so many simple tricks. One of these is the way in which you apply powder. You should never be obviously powdered. Neither should you shine! So adopt a method by which these details unite in a perfect effect.

If you insist upon powder puffs, analyze the way in which you use them. Don't you usually pound the powder on, or rub in roughly on the skin? Please never do this again. Use little tufts of cotton to apply mine. But even if I used a powder puff, I would never apply powder with the vengeance I see some use.

Powder should be dusted or lightly and thoroughly. Then a sift powder brush should blend it with the natural colour, or that of the rouge which you may use.

In this way you need never shine, yet your skin will not be irritated by harsh applications of that necessary evil—powder!

REGARDING THE EYEBROWS

I honestly think that every individual face has a pair of eyebrows made to order for that face. Therefore, it gives me quite a fright when I see tweezers being brandished in the air with abandon. I do think errant hairs may be removed, pulled by the roots of course, but not noticeably enough to change the natural line. Brushing is very necessary to beautiful eyebrows. It should be done after powdering, as the last touch in one's make-up.

Because my eyebrows are so naturally platinum as my hair, I can experiment in different shapes for different roles that I play. I do this with a pencil. But this practice is restricted to blonds.

Try making the most of your own natural eyebrow line. At night before you go to bed, dip your finger in hot water and rub it over a cake of soap. Then firmly press the eyebrow along its natural arch, getting all the little hairs into line. This stiffens them into a nice arch. In the morning, dip a bit of cotton in warm water and follow the arch, removing all traces of the soap. Always brush eyebrows up toward the forehead, then, with a tiny brush or a comb, arch them toward the ears with the same upward line.

FOR BEAUTIFUL HANDS

The first law in the care of the hands is to prevent dryness.

Use a good lotion afterward whenever you wash your hands. I think rose-water and glycerine from the nearest druggist's is a very good application. Add to it a little bergamot, because this keeps the hand white. And beautiful hands should be white.

I find it a good idea to keep a little jar of zinc oxide powder in my bathroom cabinet. I always dip an orange stick in this powder, and when my hands are thoroughly lathered, I apply this under the nails. It is a splendid bleach and also heals any tiny abrasions. For fifteen cents you can buy enough to last a year, at any drug store.

Nail polish is really a personal problem. Personally, I dislike liquid polish. I like a dry polish of natural colour, carried over the entire nail. To me it seems unlovely to leave the tips and the cuticle unpainted. Because the buffer dries the cuticle, use a good oil each night before retiring.

ART OF EYE MAKE UP

As I have already told you, I believe in make-up.

One important item of eye make-up is applying the mascara. I prefer a liquid mascara for street make-up. It is easy to apply sparingly. Of course, my advice is always much more applicable to the blonde, but this is a detail which concerns the brunette as well.

I think a good way of applying make-up to lashes is by winking it on. Hold the brush in front of the eye very steadily. Then move the hand along, repeating this process until the hand along, repeating this process until the lash is evenly made up.

I personally put less make-up on the lower lids as that emphasizes the length of the upper ones. Also, if the mascara tends to stick the lashes together, be sure to separate them with a very fine hairpin. Do this carefully, but thoroughly.

DIET FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE

I believe that the best form of dieting is to eat anything you like, in moderation. Of course it is wise to substitute berries or stewed fruits for richer desserts. No whipped cream on them either.

Another very important detail is to remain on your feet after eating, for at least fifteen minutes. Never give in to that impulse to lie down just after a meal. I find that it helps one to cut down on the amount of food if one concentrates on having things attractively served. Even the simplest of food are appetizing if they are garnished effectively.

A point about eating that applies more to beauty than to weight is to refrain from eating when very tired. Food cannot properly digest when one is fatigued. I always drink a quart of milk, and eat raisins with it, after a tedious day at the studio. This is particularly a good plan in hot weather, for it is kind to the stomach.

Moreover, every woman would be better off as to weight and complexion if she would adopt my habit of taking only liquids during one day each week.

FOR BEAUTIFUL HAIR

No bleaching, no dye and I'll tell you why... the colour or lack of colour (as in my case) of the hair corresponds with the degree of pigment in the skin. So, whenever there's the slightest change of colour in the hair, it completely destroys the individual colouring of your particular type. I recommend loads of sun. Go without a hat whenever possible. Use pure castile soap for shampooing the hair and avoid artificial dyes as much as possible. Dry the hair in the sun; next best, under lights.

Brillantine makes the hair look darker. The only use I find for brilliantine is as a protection against strong lights on the sets in the studio, since the merciless rays tend to dry the hair.

Brushing of course is essential to beautiful hair. Then too, keep your scalp stimulated. Whenever you brush the hair, massage the scalp with the finger tips, taking care not to scratch the skin with the finger nails.

And remember, your own natural colour of hair is most becoming.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

Daytime dresses positively glitter this season. Touches of rhinestone, draped collars of metallic thread, sashes of brilliant-hued velvet, belts of shining silver and gold kid all contribute to the "starry" look.

Best of Fifth Avenue, are featuring a dress called "Le Coq Rouge," and describe it as being almost as simple as the original chemise dress. It is carried out in bright crepes and trimmed with smocking. The line is straight from shoulder to hem.

Another big Fifth Avenue store is concentrating on the metal thread crepe dress. Here the tunic lines is much in evidence, particularly the one of Russian persuasion with full sleeves and a belted waistline.

Big rhinestone ornaments trim the necklines and clip the belts together.

One of the latest five o'clock dresses is a practical affair. It combines a simply cut underdress in satin topped by a cut-away tunic with long tight sleeves.

The tunics are chiefly in coarse lace or velvet and can be slipped off to reveal the satin frock beneath fashioned on ordinary dinner lines.

Another style of "double-duty" dress has a detachable jumper. Here the formally cut dinner dress is frequently in crinkled satin with the jumper in taffeta. Dark colours are preferred and the jumpers are usually buttoned all the way down the front so that they can be discarded easily.

After an almost record run in favour of dark hats, the feeling now seems to be swinging quite in the opposite direction. Pink and coral-hued hats in velvet are noticeably prominent, light blue and parrot green are other gay colours in evidence.

Turban shapes are preferred for these bright hats, which are often draped with dark veils to match a fur coat or costume.

"Dine in sleeves" is a new slogan, and the long-sleeved dinner dress has brought in its complement in the form of a new-style restaurant hat.

Many of these are made from filmy, stiffened laces. They are worn right off the face, with the up-turned brims giving a halo effect. Not an alternative to lace, and the curved brimline is sharpened by a narrow line of black sequin embroideries.

PARIS FASHIONS

Molyneux And Lucile Paray

Among the spring and summer clothes which Molyneux has just shown dresses with fitted jackets are as numerous as dresses and loose-fitting, unlined coats. There are buttons down the front, and throats are closed with white ties, the jackets are worn open, and skirts have fullness in godets or inset pleats. Dresses and capes match, their cut and fastenings at the side give them a new look. There are also woollen and linen tweed tailor-made costumes in light colours.

Molyneux makes a few silk and satin dresses for the afternoon, but he clearly prefers the simple dress and jacket or cape wrap, with white trimmings. Gauging or shirring is his way of shaping a jacket to fit shoulders and hips. Full skirts of taffetas, chiffon, and crepe are shirred two and three inches deep below the waist; a whole satin bodice is shirred, and there are some shirred hip yokes, from which skirts fall full and long. In taffetas, printed or white or coloured crinkled crepe, and spotted, muslin evening dresses are made in several styles. The full, round muslin or taffetas or satin skirt touches the ground all round; the slender figured crepe skirt is lifted in front, long at the back, and lined with a bright colour, a foot deep at the hem; the tight straight silk skirt has a full ruche at the feet. With these skirts bodices are either cut with the straight Empire line attached to broad or narrow shoulder straps or square in front with a pointed opening down the back.

For summer, evenings Molyneux suggests bright colours, and in the country simple muslin frocks. With one evening dress he puts a loose white pique wrap. One of his afternoon dresses is of black crepe with large white spots set far apart; the bloused bodice is shirred into shape in front and at the back, and it is to be worn with a loose coat and a large white straw hat lightly trimmed with black. There are several beige, grey, and navy-blue dresses of much the same kind; and for the evening there is a black muslin spotted white, with a round neckline and little sleeves. Hats, wraps, and flowers conform with the dresses.

Lucile Paray's clothes give an impression of freshness and simplicity. Navy-blue and white, black and white, or pale beige and grey, with white washing trimmings, are the foundations of morning and afternoon clothes. The skirts are slim on the hips with godets from the knees to the hem, and fuller in front than behind. Full skirts of light-weight crepe are trimmed with wide bands of stitched taffetas, and in several navy-blue dresses crepe and taffetas are united. Panels of taffetas are introduced into skirts, and deeply pointed triangles into the fronts and backs of bodices. With short-sleeved dresses there are long-sleeved coats. Coats and jackets differ in colour and material from dresses. Short coats are lined a foot deep with figured silks; capes are bordered with open-work trimmings; shiny black leather belts are shaped to the figure; arm-holes on bodices and blouses have gauging to shape them flat. Boleros falling loose from the back and not made to meet in front go with many little dresses. Spots and checks, but no stripes, appear. There is not much colour, but both evening and morning dresses are given bright belts.

THE AFFAIRS OF CELLINI

The Story Of A Great Lover, A Great Artist—The Most Charming Rascal Of All Time

(By LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE)

Gaily bedecked troubadours were playing and singing below the balcony.

Benvenuto Cellini, a famed goldsmith, a feared fighter and a notorious lover, makes many enemies, kills plenty of them and is ordered hanged by the Duke of Florence. Benvenuto finds his one love, Della, serving the Duchess who, at the same time, decides to make him her lover. He is making gold plates for the de Medici table and his hanging is postponed. The Duke takes Angela, Benvenuto's beautiful model, and is to have her at the summer palace on the same night that the Duchess orders Benvenuto to make a duplicate key to her apartment at the summer palace and come to her after dark.

It was dusk when Polverino brought Angela to the Summer palace of the Duke of Florence. The girl was exceedingly beautiful in the appropriate costume that had been provided for. But old Beatrice had been so engrossed in getting her ready that she had forgotten about food.

Angela seldom became excited over anything except her appetite. By the time she reached the summer palace she was thinking only of the dinner the Duke had promised. Polverino had brought her in a closed coach. When she alighted in the court the beautiful fountains, shrubs and flowers did not interest her in the least, nor the gaily bedecked troubadours who were playing and singing below the balcony of the private apartments of the Duke and the Duchess.

"Shall we dine soon?" she asked Polverino.

"As the Duke pleases," he told her and took her into the palace reception hall and up the private stairway, rather than up the main grand staircase.

Duke Alessandro had been watching her from the balcony, partly hidden by vines. He flattered himself that he would dazzle her and cause her to fall madly in love with him.

He bowed low when Polverino brought her to him, and kissed her hand.

She Was Happy

"Thank you, my Lord," she said, when he had finished his welcome. "It took so good."

"What looks good, my little dove?"

"The food."

A serving man came then and so the Duke and Angela sat at the table in the nook near the private stairway. Angela was smiling with joyous anticipation or the dinner. The Duke believed that her happiness was due to the fine own attractiveness. And so both of them were smiling as they ate. The Duke also was possessed of an excellent appetite. Now and then he paused to reach over and pat her hand or caress her smooth warm shoulder. His caresses were not heeded.

By the time the dessert came on, the Duke was ready to pay more attention to Angela and less to the food, but the dessert seemed far more important to the girl than any fumbling caresses of the Duke's fat, bejeweled hands.

"Are you happy, my pretty dove?" Alessandro asked.

"Yes, my Lord."

She was happy—happy, plates of sugared cakes and candied fruits were sufficient, to make her quite happy.

The Duke put his arm across her shoulders and gave her a somewhat familiar squeeze. Angela bit into another candied plum and masticated it meditatively, like a contented cow, giving no sign of his caress. The Duke frowned.

"Are you always in this mood, sweet one?" he asked, plaintively.

"What mood, my Lord?"

"Are you always cold? Have you no emotions? Do you not get thrills when I—er—fondle you thus?"

His "thus" was more fondling in a still more intimate manner.

"What is a thrill, my Lord?" she asked, with more interest in the cake than in the question.

"My innocent one! How remarkable. I shall teach you how to—er—about our court etiquette, that will delight you, will it not?"

The serving man came forward with more wine and then the Duke signalled him to get out and stay out, a signal understood and used in a like situation many a time before. The Duke moved over beside her. The troubadours swung into a harmonious love song.

"Does that not inspire you, little dove?" Alessandro asked, tenderly.

"Good food always inspires me, my Lord."

He glanced at her in amazement, then he sighed.

"Only once before," he said, "have I met a like situation, but the pretty little wench soon changed from ice to fire, as I shall make you change, my love."

"Yes, my Lord." She remembered her instructions from Beatrice and was doing her dumb best. She picked up a golden goblet and sipped some wine. She stared at the goblet. "I remember when he made this, my Lord," she said.

"Who made what?" Alessandro asked, impatient, because she would not settle up against him and look into his eyes.

"The Master, Benvenuto."

"Forget that man! Don't mention him. Don't speak to him."

"I'm sorry they hanged him."

"He will be hanged as soon as the plates are finished."

"Are you always in this mood, sweet one?" he asked, plaintively, as Angela bit into the candied plum.

Talk of Love

Angela pointed a finger at the nude figure in gold forming the stem of the goblet.

"That is me," she said.

"More beautiful in the flesh than in gold, aren't you, my love?"

"Benvenuto said so—"

"Blast Benvenuto. Er—excuse me, my lamb, come, let us talk of love."

"Yes, my Lord."

"And that reminds me," he was holding her hand and stroking her arm, "when we are alone there is no need for you to call me 'My Lord.' I much prefer that you call me by my nickname, 'Bumpy.'"

"Yes, my Lord."

"But, only in private, my sweet, only in private. If you called me 'Bumpy' in public it would—well, the Duchess—I mean to say, that it might detract me."

"Yes, my Lord."

"Don't keep saying that. Let me hear you call me 'Bumpy.'"

"Bumpy" Angela said, like a child learning to say "A."

"That's it!" Alessandro cried. "Now we are getting along, getting along famously."

He drew her head down to his shoulder and began stroking her hair.

At this time the Duchess, with her Ladies-in-Waiting reached the summer palace, but with no fanfare of trumpets. Polverino came out and started to turn back and warn the Duke, but the Duchess called out to him and he had to go to her.

"I am surprised to see you here," she said. "How is it that you are not with him at the discussion of matters of state?"

"Because—er—because, my Lady."

The good faithful fellow was trying to think of a good excuse.

"Because what?"

"Because matters came up—there could be no conference and the Duke decided to stay here."

The Duchess was a sublime actress. She wanted to scream with rage and disappointment, but she smiled most graciously and said, oh, any place, Polverino.

She proceeded into the palace, followed by her Ladies-in-Waiting, while Polverino managed to slip through to another entrance and tapped on the door to the Duke's apartment off the balcony just as the Duke had Angela in his full embrace and was saying, "My dove, the gods have given us this hour of bliss, we are alone—"

Now Showing At The Alhambra

What better inducements than the suave, cool and tempestuous acting of William Powell, coupled with the names of Colin Clive and Edna Best to bring the cinema fans to a theatre.

In "The Key" which is showing at the Alhambra Theatre, to-day these three versatile players are appearing together in a romance of revolutionary Ireland.

As Captain Tenant of the British Army in "The Key," Powell serves with His Majesty's Forces during the uprising of the Sinn Féiners in Dublin in 1920. The picture is a flaming romance set in the turbulent background of the Irish revolt.

Others in the cast include, Robert Cavanaugh, Halliwell Hobbes, Henry O'Neill Phil Regan, Ronald Crisp and J. M. Kerrigan.

There are scenes of the Ulster Irish and other secret service movements connected with the film.

This picture is certain to please the most hard hearted film fans and abounds in thrills and suspense from beginning to end, not forgetting the romance and intrigue.—(O.M.O.).

WHEELER AND WOOLSEY

Coming Attraction
In The King's

A Southern feud's the basis for the hilarious situations in "Kentucky Kernels," Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey's new hit coming to the King's Theatre.

The inimitable comedians portray down-on-their-luck vaudeville magicians who pose as Southern gentlemen when their infant ward falls heir to a vast estate in Kentucky. How the trio becomes involved in a family feud and their efforts to extricate themselves forms a rollicking romance, with gay melody, modern dancing by eye-filling beauties, and a friendly war between two clans with Coles and Remingtons.

Mary Carlisle, beautiful blonde ingenue, plays the daughter of the hostile Colonel, portrayed by Noah Beery. "Spanky" McFarland of "Our Gang Comedy" fame is seen as the orphan.

KING'S

THE KING'S
"The Life Of Vergie Winters"

Ann Harding the star, John Boles, the leading man, and Helen Vinson, the "other woman" of RKO-Radio Picture's "The Life of Vergie Winters," showing at the King's Theatre to-day, have one most unusual accomplishment in common.

They all made their acting debuts in leading roles, and they never have played anything but starring or featured parts on stage or screen.

Miss Harding got her start with the Provincetown Players, a Little Theatre group, she applied for an atmosphere bit and was given the lead in her first play. From that beginning, she progressed rapidly to Broadway and film stardom.

Miss Vinson also is a Little Theatre "graduate." She first played leads with the Houston, Texas, group. Featured roles on the New York stage followed, and then the films drafted her.

Boles, after studying voice in New York and abroad, gambled his entire career on a big hit or nothing. He refused to accept minor parts, and held out until he was offered the lead in the musical comedy "Little Jesse James." The show was a New York success and Boles won his gamble. Like the others, he attracted the attention of film producers by his stage performances.

Oddly enough, all three are natives of Texas. Miss Harding was born at Fort Sam Houston, in San Antonio. Boles is a native of Greenville, and Miss Vinson was born in Beaumont.

ROYAL BALINESE DANCERS
The Holy Kris Dance

One of the most fascinating items of the Balinese programme is the Kris dance. The original kris dance was one of the holy dances which was used in some of the temple rites. It was executed by male and female dancers who were first put into a trance. They were youths and virgins who were still untouched by sin. Occasionally dancers who were not in the holy state, wound themselves in their abandon.

The scene shows the temple dancers grouped around the idol of the God Indra. With slow rhythmic movements they take up a position on both sides of their God, while the high priest puts them into a trance. Then he presses a kris into their outstretched hands and the dance begins, first slow and then faster and faster. When they are finally exhausted, but unwounded, Ratu Idja, the star of the ballet, leaves her position on the feet of Indra and accepts from the hands of the priest, the holy kris, with which she stabs herself to death in a fascinating dance.

The Gong Dance

This dance is executed by a solo dancer seated amid the orchestra and is purely demonstrative. All movements of the dancer are derived from the actions of persons and animals. Animal life occupies an important place in the daily life of the Balinese, which accounts for the fact that many animals are portrayed in their dances. One may therefore justly call this dance a character dance.

At The Queen's

A tense and exciting screen drama of love and law is being screened at the Queen's Theatre under the title, "The Line-Up." This Columbia film is not the regular run-of-the-mill gangster-underworld story but rather concerns itself with the growth of racketeering, as a gigantic and powerful social parasite.

Featuring Marion Nixon and William Gargan in the two main leads, the picture, briefly, tells the story of the fur-snatching racket. Miss Nixon is seen as a check-room attendant in a large metropolitan hotel who is implicated in the robbery of a valuable fur coat entrusted to her care. Gargan, as the detective assigned to the case, prevails upon his superior to allow the girl her freedom in an attempt to apprehend the real criminals behind the racket.

How Gargan finally succeeds in rounding up the ring, but only after a series of harrowing experiences, makes for gripping romance and drama blended into one. He acquires himself creditably in a difficult role as does Miss Nixon as the victimized hotel employee.

John Miljan, Paul Hurst, Harold Huber and Noel Francis all veterans of the stage and screen, turn in worthwhile performances that lend immeasurably to the picture's sincerity and conviction.

The story is an original of the one written by George Wagner and the fast-moving direction is by Howard Higgin.

THE ALHAMBRA'S
NEXT CHANGE

"Private Scandals"

"Private Scandals" an adroitly-produced murder mystery-comedy that depends upon speed and cleverness rather than horror for its effectiveness, is coming to the Alhambra Theatre on Sunday.

The cast is composed of LaSu Pitts, Phillips Holmes, Mary Brian, Ned Sparks and Lew Cody, with Olive Tell, Jed Prouty, Charles B. Middleton, Rolla Lloyd and Hale Hamilton, heading the supporting players.

The film was produced by Charles R. Rogers for Paramount, and Ralph Murphy, who directed last season's "70,000 Witnesses" handled the megaphone.

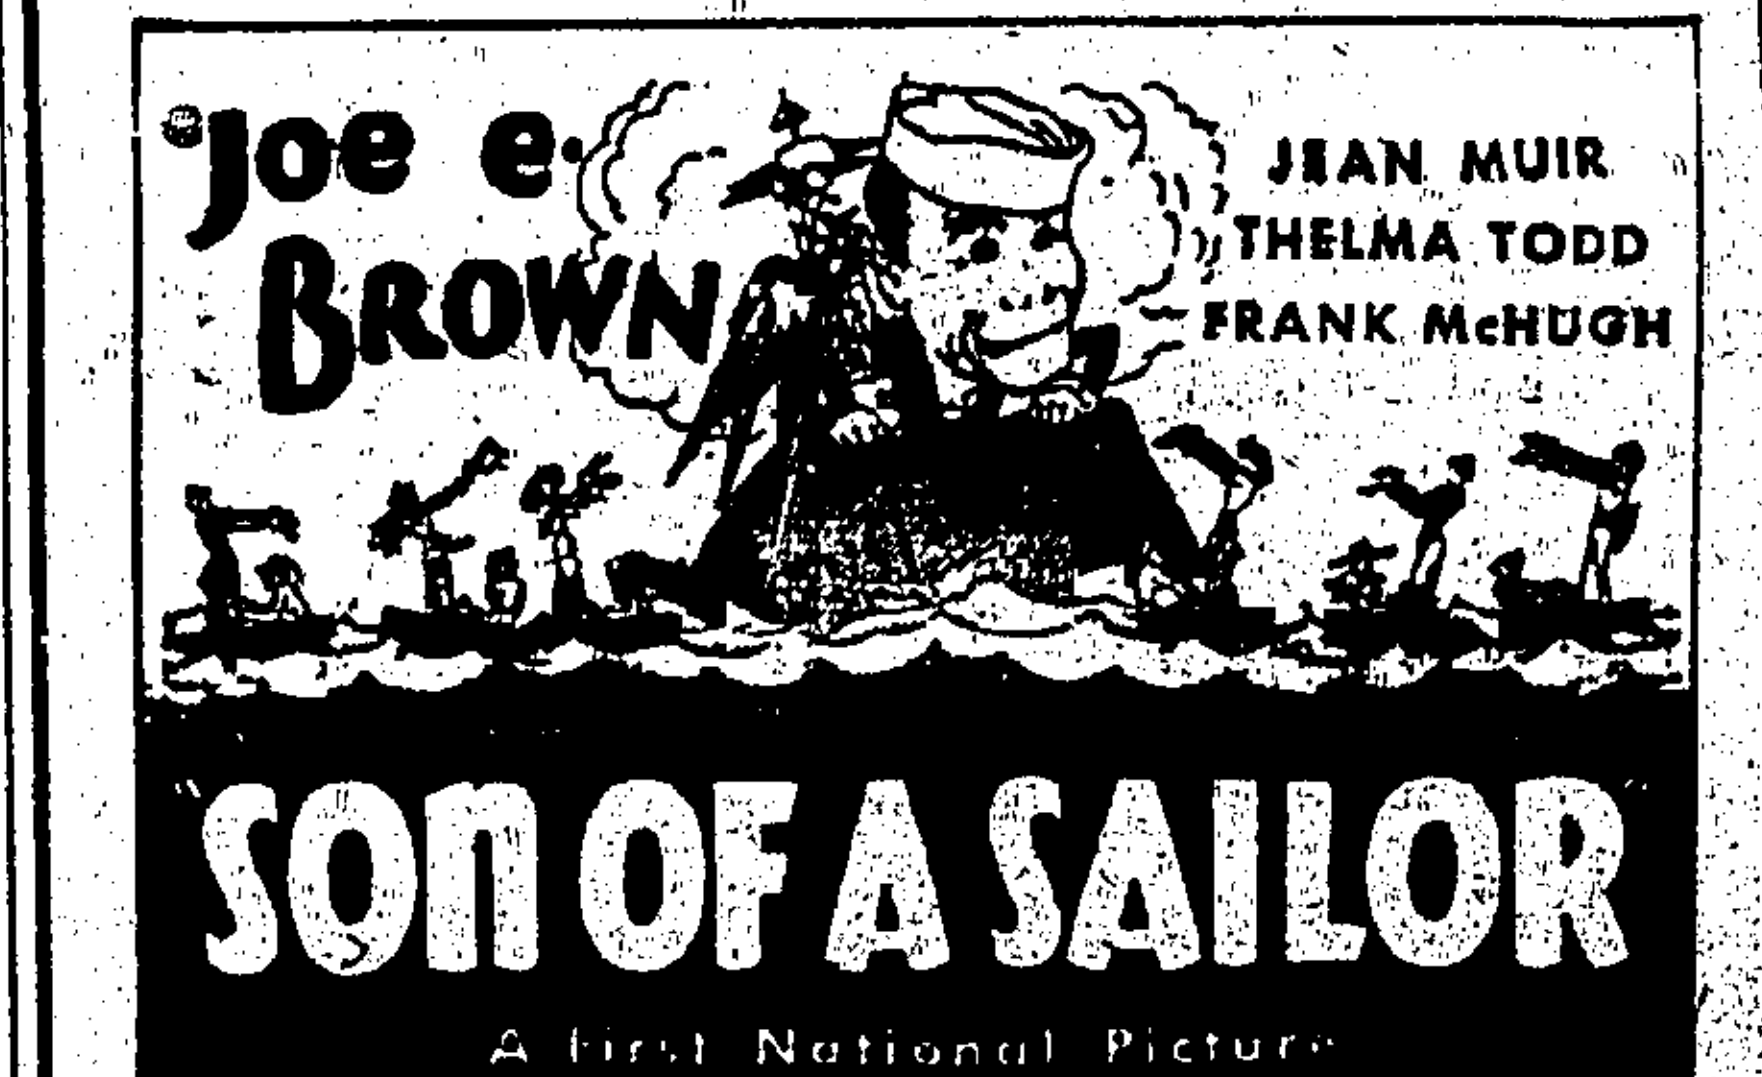

The original story was written by Vera Caspary and Bruce Manning, while Garrett Fort, noted short story writer, is responsible for the screen play.

The story raises the "murder-suicide" question when Lew Cody is found dead in his real estate office. Caught in the market crash in which he loses investors' funds, he realizes that the only way out is suicide, making it appear like murder so that his insurance policies can repay the investors.

To Ned Sparks, sour-faced detective, is given the task of unravelling a complex tangle of clues that first point to suicide, then turn to a hitherto unsuspected plot against Cody's life. When Sparks begins unravelling the mystery, countless obstacles are placed in his path; he finds each member of the office staff lying to avoid exposing a "private scandal." Yet, through these lies, he finds the answer to the mystery.

Word For Them

Fresh from its record run upon the Broadway stage, "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," Samuel Goldwyn's film version of the Zoe Akins play, comes to the Star Theatre to-day, with Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans portraying the roles of "Them!"

No expense has been spared by Mr. Goldwyn to bring this United Artists production to the screen.

The story was photographed chronologically, which means that it was "shot" as written by the author, instead of being pictured hodgepodge, as has been the custom from time immemorial in Hollywood.

What the "Word" is From the beginning—even from the beginning of the stage run—questions have arisen as to what it was the Greeks had a word for. Fans will learn now that the word is "hetaera," meaning blondes on the loose. In fact, the Greek "hetaera" and the modern so-called "gold-digger" appear to be sisters under the skin. The girls are always saying: "Meet my fiancé—not that I'm engaged or anything like that—but I'm susceptible millionaires are never safe when they are in the home."

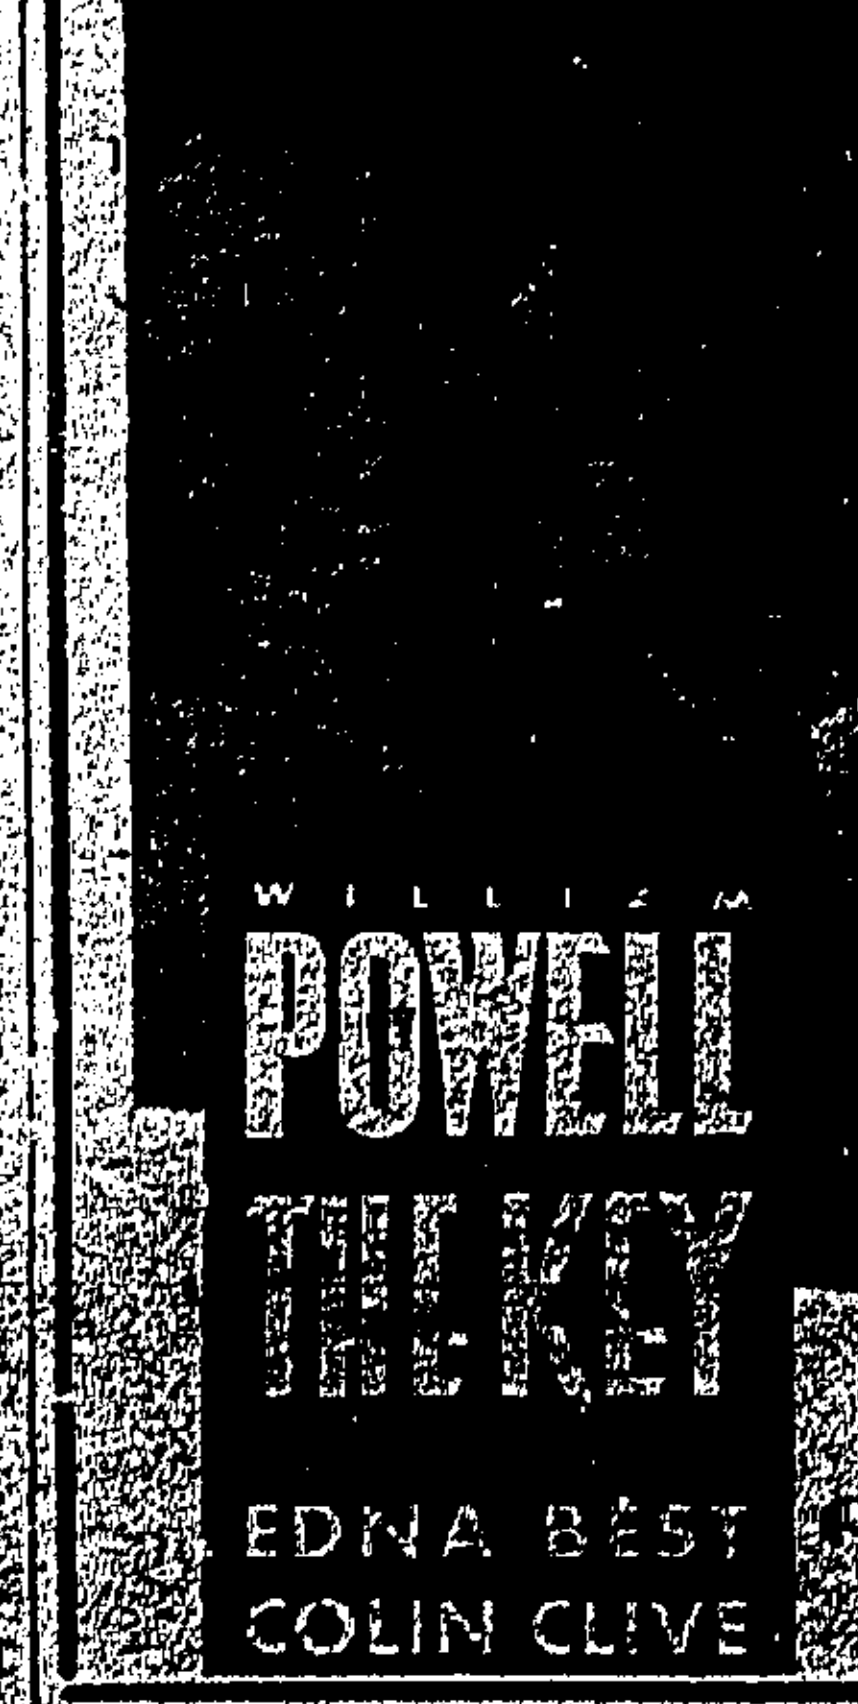

Miss Claire, who has the leading role, is a former "Pitts" girl, and if anybody ought to know about these matters, she certainly should. She will be remembered for her excellent work in "The Royal Family of Broadway," and "Rebound," her other screen characterizations. And Joan Blondell and Madge Evans are two of the fastest-moving young women in Hollywood, the latter, by the way, being the little curly-haired girl who posed atop a cake of Fairy soap about fifteen years ago.

Besides Lowell Sherman, the principal men in the picture are David Manners and Phillips Smalley. This is Smalley's first picture in years.

PORTUGUESE COMPANY'S ANNUAL DINNER

Company's Splendid Record

The Portuguese Company of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps held their Annual Dinner and Dance at the Club Lusitano last night and the function was a thorough success in every way.

Capt. S. Jarvis, the Company Commander, in his speech stressed the fact that the Corps had increased from 92 to 131 members during his absence and that the work of the Recruits had been in every way satisfactory.

WAR OF FUTURE DEPENDS ON INFANTRY

There was a large and distinguished gathering present and among those were: Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, Col. L. G. Bird, Marquis de Ficalho, Consul General for Portugal, Col. Harrison, G.S.O. (I), Capt. P. S. M. Wilkinson (Adjutant), Capt. J. S. Rodrigues, Lieut. Dunbar, Lieut. J. V. V. Remedios, Lieut. J. R. Way, Lieut. H. F. Westlake, 2/Lt. F. P. Sequeira, Lieut. T. P. Sanderson, Lieut. H. J. Silva, 2/Lt. H. A. de Barros Botelho, Dr. F. M. Graca Ozorio, Messrs. Leo D'Almada, Jun., F. X. D'Almada, Jun., C. A. da Roza, A. W. da Roza, T. B. Wilson, F. L. Silva, A. C. Botelho, F. Stafford Smith, W. H. Edmonds, J. O. Remedios, W. F. Arndt, F. J. Figueiredo and Dr. J. W. Barnes.

After an excellent dinner the toasts of H.M. The King and the President of Portugal were drunk. Company Commander's Speech.

In addressing the gathering Capt. S. Jarvis the Company Commander in the course of his speech said:

It has been usual to thunder out some heart-stirring appeal for recruits but in my absence a campaign during the summer increased our numbers from 92 to 131. Whether I can feel that my appeal last year bore this fruit or whether some more beguiling tongue at a later date was responsible I don't know. (Laughter.)

Actually this year we have shown a complete reversal of form since whereas in the past we could always point to our athletic achievements this year we point with pride to our recruiting and shooting successes. We are glad to know that they could not deal with us in the water—presumably they need some spirit with it—and at the Aquatic Sports we won the Cup which appears to come to us with monotonous regularity. (Applause.)

Shooting Record

In our shooting, too, we have a record this training season which, I think, could hardly be bettered. The Interport Cup competed for between this company and the Portuguese Company of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps was won by us. There is a gentleman's agreement between the two companies whereby we fire in different months owing to the variation in weather conditions. We fired in February and had an anxious wait until April, when Shanghai failed to retain the trophy gained by them in the previous year.

At the Corps Rifle Meeting at Easter the company achieved what must be the unique distinction of carrying off all the individual prizes for musketry, comprising The Corps Championship won by L/Serjt. Cruz 113 out of 125, The Musketry Competition won by the Late Private A. M. B. Rocha 52 out of 60, The Officers Prize won by Lieut. Silva and The Tyro Competition won by Corpl. Nunes.

During the training Corpl. J. D. Remedios, No. 11 Platoon won the distinction of the Special Marksmen's Badge, the Rifle and Star as the best musketry shot of the company and Pte. A. C. Xavier won the Special L. G. Badge Lewis Gun and Star, as the best Lewis Gunner with a possible score which he has achieved two years in succession.

Our recruits turned out to be of good material and 80 per cent. them passed out very quickly indeed. Attendance at parades continue to be very gratifying and in camp, excluding exemptions from one cause or another we had 100 per cent. attendance.

It is very creditable, I think, that so many of our members do far more than the obligations imposed on them by the Volunteer Ordinance; only by their keenness and "esprit-de-corps" can any real work be done. Our discipline continues to improve and in view of the comparative youth of our members as compared with other units, is remarkably good; what is lacking to some extent in steadiness is more than made up by keenness.

Company Promotions

As you know, I was away on leave for the majority of the year but Captain Rodrigues, supported by the other officers carried on nobly and I was very pleased to hear of his promotion. Captain Rodrigues is a very able officer, he was our first Company Sergeant Major, he was the first to be commissioned and he is the first Portuguese officer of the company to attain the rank of Captain.

I wish to congratulate Mr. Botelho on his promotion to the commissioned ranks. Mr. Botelho is one of our keenest members. It has been very seldom that a parade either compulsory or voluntary has been held without his being present.

Change of Command

This year has seen a change in command of the Corps. Colonel Bird after many years of hard work has handed on the torch to Colonel Dowbiggin who appears amongst us to-night as our commandant.

The only apparent difference, however, is that the badges of rank and the seating accommodation are changed, as old soldiers never die and Colonel Bird is present as usual. We could not have a happier proof of his constant interest in us. Colonel Dowbiggin needs no introduction from me. He has continually shown his keen interest, and ungrudgingly helped us when as President of Regimental Institutes we have requested his assistance. His keenness and desire to see the Corps shining in all fields of work, sport and social activity are an inspiration to us all, and we can safely say to ourselves, we have not lost Colonel Bird but we have gained Colonel Dowbiggin.

Our thanks are due to those firms, and particularly to the officials of those undertakings who did such good service in stimulating recruiting this and in keeping our attendances up to the mark. This personal influence carries great weight with the type of youngster we want and I am going to close with the statement that we hope for continued support as we cannot say that our recruiting work is finished until every Portuguese lad of military age has either served for at least three years or is undergoing training. (Applause.)

Commandant's Hope

Colonel Dowbiggin congratulated the Portuguese Company on the success of their past year's work. He expressed the hope that the strength of the Company would reach 300 before the year is out. He mentioned, amid applause, that he had written to the General Officer Commanding recommending the promotion of 2/Lt. Sequeira to the rank of Lieutenant.

Captain Rodrigues in a short speech, stated that with the presence of Col. Harrison it was the first occasion on which they had had the pleasure of the company of a General Staff Officer (D) at their annual dinner.

Dr. Graca Ozorio thanked the hosts on behalf of the guests and said that as President of the Club Lusitano he would welcome members of the Portuguese Company to the Club at any time.

Colonel Harrison said that Major-General Borrett was unable to attend owing to a previous engagement. The Portuguese Company, he added, was of value to the Volunteer organisation. He mentioned that within the past twelve months the "great ones of the British Army" had met in England to discuss whether they should or should not have an Infantry and they came to the conclusion that "by Infantry alone

MUSLIM LEADER WELCOMED

Entertained At Tea By Local Muslims

The well-known Muslim Missionary Syed Jemaudeen Jilan was entertained by the local Muslim Society at a tea party yesterday at the Exchange Restaurant.

Mr. R. M. Omar who was in the chair welcomed the Moulana and in a short speech said Syed Jemaudeen Jilan:—On behalf of our brethren here I extend to you, Sir, a very hearty welcome. We appreciate the privilege of entertaining one so learned and well versed in the teachings of Islam and, we assure you, we feel highly honoured by your gracious presence, here this evening.

It is seldom that we have the opportunity of meeting one so esteemed as you are and, we hope, your visit is only the forerunner of visits by other equally brilliant Muslims. It is from such that we learn more of the beauties of Islamic teachings and thus strive to become more worthy Muslims.

We pray our Merciful Allah that He may spare you many years to enjoy and continue the good work you have been doing for the cause of Islam and we look forward to the day when we may have the pleasure of meeting you in Hong Kong again.

I wish to thank you for coming here this evening and we pray that you may have a very pleasant voyage and that you may have a long life, peace and happiness for many years to come.

The Moulana replied and said:—Brethren—I wish to thank you for the kind reception which you have accorded me this afternoon. Words cannot describe the feeling and appreciation which I have in my heart. When I leave Hong Kong I will always remember this reception and will pray to Allah that in His Merciful Guidance, He will give the Muslims greater unity here, and work for the Progress of Islam—The Religion of Peace.

After tea the Moulana gave a very interesting and comprehensive lecture on Islam.

The Moulana is a descendant of Syed Abdul Kadir Jalilani Al-Hasani. He was born in Damascus, and was educated at the Al-Ashar University, Cairo.

In the course of his tour, the Moulana has visited Hyderabad and Decan, and was given a special audience by the ruler of Mizam, who, having satisfied himself of the Moulana's good work for the cause of Islam, granted him a life pension from the State treasury.

The Moulana also visited Penang, the Malay States and Singapore, and at Singapore gave a series of lectures on the religion of Islam.

Routine Tour Of Inspection

A denial that either the equipment or personnel of the Royal Air Force in the Far East would be expanded was made by Air Commodore W. L. Welsh, D.F.C., A.F.C., when interviewed by Pressmen on his arrival here yesterday morning by the ss. Cathay. Air Commodore Welsh added that his visit was merely a tour of inspection and it possessed no special significance. It is possible, however, that permanent sheds and buildings will be built at Kai Tak aerodrome in place of the temporary establishments at present existing there.

Accompanying Air-Commodore Welsh are Air-Commodore S. W. Smith, Squadron-Leader G. R. Col. J. E. Turner, and Flight-Lieutenant Bladen.

The party will remain in Hong Kong until Tuesday, when they will return to Singapore by the ss. Aeneas.

The war of the future would either be won or lost.

Following the dinner there was a dance the music being supplied by Mickey's Melody Makers. The dance lasted till the small hours of the morning.

Musical prizes won by members of the Company during the year were also presented by Miss Dowbiggin.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

MAN WITH THIN SKULL

Lee Man Nung appeared before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday charged with the manslaughter of Pang Kup on February 28 while the ship Hong Peng was at sea between Hong Kong and Singapore.

Mr. T. Murphy A.S.P., prosecuted and the defendant was not legally represented.

In outlining the case Mr. Murphy said that the defendant was one of over 200 emigrants travelling on the ship. He was among those accommodated over No. 2 hatch and was travelling with his wife. Deceased was travelling with his sister-in-law and occupied the space next to the defendant's, both having boarded the boat at Swatow which left on February 28 and arriving here on the 27.

Nothing happened on the voyage and on February 28 when the boat was on passage to Singapore deceased was supposed to have touched the defendant's wife's hand. This was brought to his notice but nothing happened.

Deceased Picked Up

On the morning of February 28 at about 8 a.m. deceased was said to have received injuries which rendered him unconscious.

Defendant was seen to stand over him with a piece of firewood. Defendant was seized and detained and subsequently brought back to Hong Kong.

Medical Evidence

Dr. G. V. A. Griffith stated that he performed a post mortem examination on the deceased on March 1 and described the skull as being notably weak. Internally the skull showed a large fracture over a cavity running from side to side. There were no external injuries. The cause of death was shock and hemorrhage following upon fracture of the skull.

After further evidence was given the case was adjourned.

POSSESSION OF ARMS

Tang Hing Cheung, a 31-year-old Chinese, charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones for the possession of two revolvers and five rounds of ammunition, at Central Magistracy yesterday, was committed to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

It was stated that on February 27 at about 6.30 a.m. defendant disembarked from the ss. "Kwong Tung" at the Yuen On Wharf. Defendant was carrying a rattan bag in one hand and in the other a string bag containing two pumpkins. A Chinese Revenue officer searched the bag, but could find nothing unlawful. The Revenue officer asked defendant what the pumpkins were for, and defendant replied they were for his mother. When the Revenue officer noticed that the pumpkins had been cut, his suspicions were aroused and he informed Revenue Officer Major, who inspected the pumpkins.

R. O. Major asked defendant what were the pumpkins for and defendant gave the same reply. Then R. O. Major cut open one of the pumpkins and found parts of a revolver. He brought the defendant and the pumpkins to the Revenue Office where he opened the other pumpkin and found also parts of a revolver and five rounds of ammunition. R. O. Major sent the Chinese officer with a chit and defendant to Central Police Station where defendant was kept in custody.

Sergeant Scott giving evidence said that the parts of the revolvers when fitted together formed one complete weapon and the other though not complete, could be fired. Both of the revolvers and recently been fired, and were rusty and not licensed.

Defendants Story

Defendant stated that he was not the owner of the pumpkins but they were given to him by a clansman to bring to Hong Kong. He was told to meet his clansman at Yuen On Wharf when he arrived.

When the charge against him was read at the Central Police, defendant said that he had nothing to say.

MURDER TRIAL CONCLUDES

THREE MEN COMMITTED

Chan Ho, Ho Wing and Kwok Kan Kel charged with the murder of Chan Tai Lai on board a junk at Castle Peak on January 15 with others not in custody, were yesterday committed to take their trial at the next Criminal Session by Mr. A. W. G. H. Grantham at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith prosecuted while the defendants were not represented.

Identification Held

Mr. T. Murphy A.S.P., gave evidence regarding the identifications held. On February 2 at the Kowloon Hospital Leung Kam identified the first accused as being the robber who forced her husband into the hold and struck him with a revolver. Chan Kol and Leung Ho were unable to identify anybody.

At another parade at Central Police Station on February 3 the second and third defendants were picked out by Leung Kam as the man who steered the boat and the man who pressed the hatch down on their hold. Chan Kol identified the second and third defendants who were seen on Ho Wing's boat. Leung Ho picked out the third as being the man who was on board during the attack.

Evidence was then given by Ng Sai Lo and Sin Kau to the effect that on January 14 and 15 the defendants were seen in company with others walking near Castle Peak.

The case having closed the three defendants reserved their statements for the Supreme Court.

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday, the case in which nine Chinese were charged with having murdered a man named Wang Fuk at 10B Chan Yu Wu village, on February 13 last, came to an abrupt end when Detective Inspector A. H. Elston told the Court that the police had no evidence to offer.

Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr., who represented all the defendants, formally applied to his Worship to discharge them. His Worship accordingly discharged the defendants.

On charges of dumping rubbish in Kennedy Road, two servants of Dr. Li Shu Fan were fined $10 and $5 respectively by Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday.

Defendants were Chan Wo, 42, cook, and Chan Cho, 22, assistant cook, and the charge against them was that they dumped a quantity of rubbish in Kennedy Road, near the public latrine, at 8 p.m. yesterday.

Nursing Sepoy Tiwari, the principal witness at the court martial of Sub. Asst. Surgeon Jemadar Balwant Singh on charges of receiving bribes and for which he was dismissed the service, has been sentenced by summary court martial to four months' rigorous imprisonment and dismissed the service for perjury in regard to his evidence.

H.K. & KOWLOON WHARF AND GODOWN CO.

Capital To Be Increased

The 48th Ordinary annual meeting of the Hong Kong and Kowloon Wharf and Godown Co., Ltd. was held at the Board Room of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., Ltd. yesterday, Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson being in the chair.

In the course of his speech, the chairman reported that there was a decrease of nearly $30,000 in profits and referred to the work of dredging in the vicinity of the wharves.

At the extraordinary meeting which followed, a resolution was adopted to increase the capital of the Company from $4,000,000 to $8,000,000 by the creation of 80,000 additional shares of the nominal value of $50 each.

The Chairman said:—Before I deal with the ordinary business of the Meeting, I must, with much regret, make reference to the death of Mr. J. P. Warren who attended our last meeting and had been a member of the Board since 1929.

From the Accounts presented you will learn that there was a decrease of nearly $30,000.00 in our profits last year, but in view of the very adverse conditions of trade, particularly shipping, the result is better than expected. Compared with 1933, there was a decrease of 65,000 tons of cargo landed whilst 73 more vessels discharged at the wharves. This is a similar position to that which I referred to at the last meeting when comparing the tonnage landed in 1933 to that of 1932. It illustrates the depressed state shipping is passing through and the efforts shipowners are making to keep up connections. Undoubtedly it is the cheapness of the port that encourages Shipping Companies to make Hong Kong a port of call in spite of so little cargo offering.

During last year our No. 2 Wharf was lengthened from 575 feet to 750 feet, and this year we are extending No. 1 Wharf from 657 feet to 750 feet. This Wharf will also be widened from the present width of 51 feet to 81 feet and on the wharf will be erected a shelter for convenience of passengers and baggage.

Dredging Work

Another construction scheme we have on hand is the building of eight shops on the Salisbury Road end of the Kowloon property. These should be completed early in June. I may mention that we already have tenants waiting to go into the buildings when ready for occupation. Last year I referred to dredging which it was hoped would be undertaken in the vicinity of the wharves. This work is being done and there is now sufficient water around the new wharf, which is 800 feet in length, to berth vessels drawing up to 32 feet. When the question of dredging was taken up with Government and this Company agreed to bear the cost of dredging between the wharves and an area 100 feet from the sea ends, it was understood that the approaches would be dredged at Government expense. It transpired later, however, that such was not the case and the Company is now called upon to pay a portion of the cost of clearing the Harbour bed to permit vessels to approach the wharves. We pointed out that modern shipping tendency is for larger ships and that the maintenance of the Harbour generally should not be laid to the charge of the Company but although Government took a sympathetic view of the situation, we were compelled to agree to pay half the cost of the necessary work.

In the Accounts the only item calling for special comment is the $88,913.00 expended under renewals. This was the cost of reconditioning No. 2 Wharf which was done during alterations and extension.

I now beg to propose that the Report and Accounts as presented be adopted and that the dividend and bonus be paid as recommended. When this has been seconded, I shall be pleased to reply to any questions arising out of the Accounts, which members wish to put. The motion was seconded by Mr. S. H. Dodwell and carried unanimously.

Other Matters

The appointments of Mr. Stanley H. Dodwell and Mr. D. Drummond as directors were confirmed on the proposal of Mr. J. D. Danby, seconded by Mr. A. W. Heron.

Messrs. T. B. Wilson and Felix A. Joseph were re-elected directors on the proposal of Mr. J. M. Alves, seconded by Mr. D. Mackenzie.

On the proposal of Mr. Kwok Hin Wang, seconded by Mr. G. B. S. Thomson, Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming and Messrs. Linstead and Davis were re-elected auditors.

INCREASE IN CAPITAL

An extraordinary meeting followed for the purpose of obtaining the consent of shareholders to an increase in Capital.

The Chairman said:—

Gentlemen.—This meeting has been called for the purpose of obtaining your consent to an increase in Capital, outlined in the Notice just read by the Secretary. This step has become necessary in view of the fact that during the past ten years we have expended the sum of $4,810,376.00 on Land, Buildings, Wharves, Launches and Lighters, and now we have to find a considerable amount for dredging. The first cost of our Property and Plant was in the neighbourhood of ten million dollars, and I know that the replacing value to-day would be vastly higher. I think you will agree with your Directors that the Capital of $4,000,000.00 is not in proportion to the value of our Assets.

Our proposal is to issue new Capital at $25.00 premium, or $75.00 per share, to the extent of $750,000.00 making this issue on 1st July next.

I beg to propose the following Resolutions:—

1. That the authorised capital of the Company (which is now $4,000,000.00) consisting of 80,000 shares of the nominal value of $50.00 each the whole of which have been issued) be increased to $8,000,000.00 by the creation of 80,000 additional shares of the nominal value of $50.00 each ranking (subject as hereinafter mentioned) as from the date of allotment for dividend and all other respects pari passu with the shares comprising the Company's present capital.

2. That 10,000 of the said new shares be offered in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of eight old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the Seventh day of March, 1935, are registered in the Company's share register as the holders of the said 80,000 existing shares at a premium of $25.00 per share and upon the footing that the full amount of each share taken up plus the said premium of $25.00 (making together $75.00 per share) shall be paid to the Company on acceptance of the offer, such shares so taken up not to participate in any dividend declared before the 1st day of July, 1935, but to participate in any dividend declared thereafter pro rata with the existing capital. And that the said offer be made by Notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled and limiting the time within which the offer is not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee will be deemed to be declined and that the Directors of the Company shall be at liberty to fix such time. And further that any of the said 10,000 shares which are not taken up by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Board of Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

3. That no shareholder shall be entitled to any offer of a fraction of an additional share in respect of any old shares held by such shareholder.

4. That the remaining 70,000 new shares be issued at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Board of Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

After this proposal has been seconded, I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to answer any questions shareholders may wish to ask.

The proposal was seconded by Hon. C. Gordon Mackie and carried unanimously.

Those present at the meetings were: Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson (Chairman), Hon. Mr. C. Gordon Mackie, Mr. S. H. Dodwell, Mr. J. H. Jeason, Mr. Felix A. Joseph, Mr. T. B. Wilson (directors), Mr. R. A. Watson, of Messrs. Deacons (solicitors for the Company), Mr. F. H. Crapnell (secretary), and Messrs. J. M. Alves, N. V. A. Croucher, A. W. Heron, D. Mac-

COLLISION IN HARBOUR

N.Y.K. Succeeds In Appeal

The collision between the N.Y.K. steamer Toyooka Maru, and the China Navigation Company's vessel s.s. Kiangsu, in the harbour on March 22, 1931, was recalled at the Supreme Court yesterday when the result of the Privy Council Appeal having been known for some time, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha successfully applied for the return of deposit money and for costs.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., instructed by Mr. Davidson, of Hastings & Co., appeared for the appellants, the N.Y.K. and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. M. Watson, of Johnson, Stokes & Master, represented the respondents.

Referring to the finding of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council Mr. Sheldon read: "The appeal is to be allowed; the judgment of the Chief Justice of February 19, 1932, and of the Full Court of August 15, 1932, to be reversed and the case to be remitted to the Supreme Court of Hong Kong with a direction to the Toyooka Maru and Kiangsu both equally to blame for the collision, and to dispose of the consolidated actions including the costs in the Court below, in accordance with this finding. The appellants, having been in part successful before Their Lordships, will have half the costs of the appeal."

Repayment Details

Mr. Sheldon said the present motion before the Court was to apply for an order that the China Navigation Co. repay the appellants sums of $41,037.64 paid for damages and interest; and $14,402.23 paid for costs and interest; together with interest at eight per cent. per annum from January 12, 1933, until payment; and also that respondents pay the costs of the present motion.

Enlarging on the motion, Counsel said the $41,037.64 was the actual amount paid over by N.Y.K. for the assessed damages. He did not think it would be disputed that they were entitled to interest on the damages they had paid. The important matter was that of costs, in which his Lordship could exercise his discretion. Appellants were not asking for costs in the original action, but they were asking for the costs of the Full Court and half the costs of the appeal to the Privy Council.

Mr. Jenkin said his clients were agreeable to pay half, but he felt that the expenses of the present motion had been involved unnecessarily, as notice need not have been served, and he asked for the costs of the motion.

Mr. Sheldon replied that the only manner in which he could bring his requirements before the Court was by serving notice.

His Lordship (Mr. A. D. A. Macgregor) granted orders in the terms of the motion of the appellants, and ordered the China Navigation Co. to pay the costs of the day's hearing.

POLISH TRAINING SHIP TO VISIT HONG KONG

The "Dar Pomorza" (Gift of Pomerania), the first sailing ship under the Polish flag ever to visit Hong Kong is scheduled to arrive in the Colony on March 29 for a stay of 5 days.

The ship is a three masted frigate of 1,586 tons and is equipped with a 500 H.P. auxiliary motor. Its length is 240 feet, width 33 feet and submergence 20 feet. The colourful craft left Gdynia (Polish port on the Baltic) on September 1, 1934 under the command of Captain Konstanty Maciejewicz on an itinerary comprising North America, West Indies, Panama Canal and Japan, and is expected to reach Shanghai on March 17th where the Municipality is planning a reception in honour of the Polish navigators.

The "Dar Pomorza" is a training ship for Polish merchant marine officers and carries 66 cadets, a number of instructors, a chaplain and a crew of 41. EUROPEAN Y. M. C. A.

Appeal To Members To Pay Accounts Promptly

An appeal that members will recognise their duty to the Association and settle their accounts promptly was made by Hon. Sir William Shenton when he presided at the annual general meeting of the European Y.M.C.A. held yesterday.

In the course of his speech, Sir William said that the most important decision of the Board of Directors made during 1934 was the re-organisation of the staff coupled with the discontinuance of the Comptroller system. The past year ended with a debit balance of $113.11, which, he said, was undoubtedly caused mainly by the reduced number of residents in the building, especially last summer.

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

The President, Hon. Sir William Shenton, said:

Since a copy of the Annual Report has been forwarded to each member of the Y.M.C.A., it will not be necessary for me to give an extensive account of the past year's work in the Association. The most important decision of the Board of Directors made during 1934 was the re-organising of the Y.M.C.A. staff coupled with the discontinuance of the Comptroller system. I am pleased to be able to report that the new system of catering under the change of the Manageress, Mrs. Foster, is proving satisfactory and is fully justifying the change made by the Directors.

Mr. Justice Wood retired from Government Service last year after a long and honourable career. He was a great supporter of our Association and his place will be difficult to fill. We wish him every happiness in his retirement.

Mr. Fleming and Mr. Mackichan have done excellent work for us as members of our Finance Subcommittee and we much appreciate their work on behalf of the Association.

Mr. J. H. Hunt, after nine years service with this Y.M.C.A., left for England upon the expiration of his term of office and all who knew him will be pleased to learn that he is now Divisional Y.M.C.A. Secretary in Durban, South Africa. We wish him all success in his new position.

Although Mr. J. L. McPherson's retirement does not come in the year under review to-day, I would like to thank him on behalf of the Directors and members of the Y.M.C.A. for the valuable services that he has rendered the Association in Hong Kong during the past thirty years. There will be a farewell to Mr. McPherson in this lounge at 5.45 p.m. on Thursday the 21st of March, and I am sure that there will be a large attendance of members present on that day to bid him "bon voyage."

The various activities of the Association under the headings Spiritual, Literary, Social, Athletic and the Women's Section have resulted in a popular and well supported programme, and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking the honorary secretaries and members of committees for the efficient and conscientious manner in which they have carried out their work for the benefit of their fellow members. I hope the coming year will be no less active and that the support as in the past will be continued.

The Services Committee has been very active in its work on behalf of the Service-men stationed here and is to be congratulated on the unqualified success that has attended its activities. Thanks are particularly due to Mr. A. R. Brown and his lady helpers.

The Cheero Club

During the year under review the Cheero Club has been reopened under the aegis of our Association and our Board are represented on their Committee. The good work that the Club does is I am sure much appreciated by the Services. Warm thanks are due to those ladies who are taking part in the entertainments to the Services.

And now we come to the only bad weather encountered during the annual voyage of the Association barque, the black clouds of which storm are now fortunately receding over the horizon astern. I refer to the balance sheet.

As you have no doubt noted, we finished 1934 with a debit balance of $113.11. This was undoubtedly caused mainly by the reduced number of residents in the building during the year especially last summer. Our membership was increased and the strictest economy was observed in matters of finance by the staff. For the coming year we trust that the improved conditions in the building will attract more residents to the Y.M.C.A.—just now we have very few empty rooms—with a resultant increase of income.

Bad Debts

A disturbing feature of the financial year was the number of bad debts suffered by the Association. These have been so extensive that hundreds of dollars have had to be written off, a reserve of $3,000.00 for bad debts has been set aside. If members will look at the balance sheet they will notice an overdraft of $124,550.00 due to the Bank: this item alone will serve to explain why we cannot afford to extend unlimited credit and it is to be hoped that members will recognise their duty to the Association and settle their accounts promptly.

Since Mr. Hunt left us the burden of the day has fallen on the shoulders of Mr. Ingram and Mr. Selk. Their work has increased as Mr. Hunt has not been replaced for reasons of economy. They have carried out their duties conscientiously and efficiently and have ably supported the Board. Mr. Ingram is at the moment indisposed but we believe we will be at work again in a few days' time.

In conclusion I should like to say how pleased we are to see The Hon. Sir Henry Pollock back in our midst and hearty after his home leave and I hope to see him shortly occupying his old position on our Board. To Mr. Cassidy our Vice President I want to extend my thanks for the great assistance he has been to the Board and the large amount of work he has done for the Association.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy and Mr. P. S. Cassidy were re-elected directors.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. Cassidy proposed a vote of thanks to Sir William Shenton, which was heartily accorded.

Those present at the meeting included Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, Mr. John Fleming and Mr. A. S. Mackichan.

HELENA MAY CONCERT

Enjoyable Piano Recital

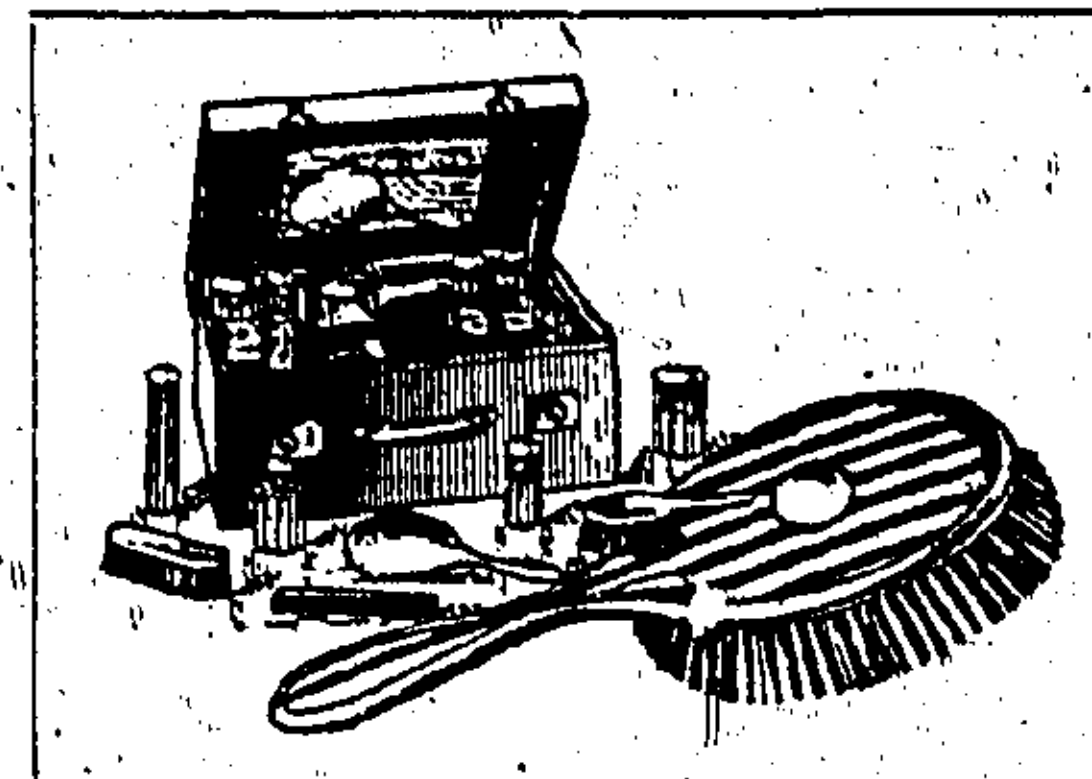

After an absence from public appearances of over two years, Madame Luba Shafstain, the well known and popular pianist, delighted a large audience at the Helena May Institute yesterday when she presented a pianoforte recital.

That the recital was a complete success was to be put it mildly for apart from the well arranged programme, the interpretations by Madame Shafstain of the various Masters were most enjoyable. She displayed a high degree of technique, and her playing was so delightful that every item was deservedly accorded round after round of applause.

The programme was a well balanced one, ranging from early composers, such as Scarlatti and Rameau, to Schumann, Chopin, Liszt, Glazounov and Rachmaninoff, and Madame Shafstain interpreted the works of these Masters so well, that it was difficult to pick out the best one. Let it be said, however, that the Recital was indeed enjoyable and we hope to hear this artist more of in the following was the programme:—

Sonata Scarlatti (1683-1757)
Le Tambourin Rameau (original) (1683-1764)
Le Tambourin Rameau-Godovsky
Le Concerto Dagnin (1683-1768)
Two Fantaisies Op. 18 Schumann
Fantaisie-Improvisation Chopin
Variations on a Russian Theme Liszt
Etude-Caprice Paganini-Liszt
Mephisto-Valse Liszt
Humoresque Rachmaninoff

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH

Congratulations are due to the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research on its important and indefatigable labours. Each year its researches, carried out with the co-operation of industrial firms, cover so vast and varied a field, that it is possible to draw attention only to some of the more remarkable and fascinating discoveries. These practical men of science possess the élan of the average schoolboy who wants to know how everything works, and why, with the added joy of fully equipped laboratories at their disposal to help them to find out. Last year's work ranged from experiments with steel, coal, aeroplanes, ships and roads to investigations into such seemingly trivial affairs as marshmallows, fruit jellies and boiled sweets. To take the graver matters first, we note, for example, that Wales may find a new outlet for steam coal by the development of a new pulverised fuel burner, and that a plant for converting tar into motor spirit is nearing completion. The Radio section has made a robot wireless receiver, transmitter and camera for studying the effects of the upper atmosphere on wireless waves, while the corrosive effect of atmosphere pollution on non-ferrous metals and leather is being recorded at twenty-seven separate stations. The Road Research station is trying to determine how changes in various sub-soils interfere with their efficiency of road foundations, and the effect of every sort of vehicle on road surfaces is being carefully measured. In view of the general rehousing programme, increased activity in building research is already under way.

The continuous researches to ensure purer and better food are perhaps even more interesting to the ordinary man. The Dominions and Colonies contribute £10,000 a year towards this work. A new method of cooling ships' holds, which offers economies in space and equipment and is suitable for a wide range of cargoes, has been devised, and is being adopted in some of the new vessels now under construction for the Australian trade. The report records how a storage atmosphere has been worked out in which the favour of apples can be retained for six months; how experiments at a Whitehall factory have shown that rapidly growing pigs make the best bacon; and how with lighter, saltier, a cure has been

"HIAWATHA"

Brilliant Production By Philharmonic Society

And they said, "O good IAGOO, Tell us now a tale of wonder, That the feast may be more joyous, That the time may pass more gaily, And our guests be more contented."

Last evening the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society gave its first performance of "HIAWATHA" in the China Fleet Club Theatre. Before discussing the concert perhaps a few words concerning the composer and the work itself may not prove amiss.

The Composer
This rather unique cantata was written by Samuel Coleridge Taylor. At the early age of 10 he showed his taste for music as a choir boy in St. George's Church, Croydon.

Hiawatha
It was at the early age of 25 years, while still a student at the Royal College that the first part of the trilogy called "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" was written. This was first performed at the Royal College in 1898 and was his crowning achievement as a student. It was also the work on which more than any later one his mature reputation rests. The second part, the "Death of Minnehaha" was written for the North Staffordshire Musical Festival the next year and then with the addition of "Hiawatha's Departure," the three parts were performed as a whole by the Royal Choral Society in 1900.

In later years there are probably few who have not embraced the opportunity of witnessing the whole cantata given as a Pageant at the Albert Hall under the combined direction of Dr. Malcolm Sargent and Mr. Fairbairn. This has been one of the greatest spectacles of our time and in the metropolis deservedly had a unique reception.

Coleridge Taylor became conductor of the Handel Society in 1904 and of various other societies including Rochester and Croydon but, apart from interpreting his own compositions his career remained uneventful and was chiefly occupied outside his compositions with work as teacher and conductor in the neighbourhood of Croydon. Here he lived and died in 1912 at the early age of 37.

His love of his great cantata is exemplified in the son he named "Hiawatha," himself a musician and conductor of note.

Structure
"Hiawatha" is really more in the nature of a long part song. There are no big choruses, nor difficult fugues. In fact all the accepted forms are ignored and the composer relies almost entirely on simple imitation for all his effects. It is in what one might almost describe as "Narrative form"—the words being taken line by line and set to the music. He loves to run two voices in union, thirds or sixths (easy for the singer) or allow two voices to sing one line of the poetry and the other two continue with the next an octave higher or lower.

Lightly scored, colourful and tuneful, from a choral point of view the absence of difficult intervals, the rather obvious melodic progressions, the logical modulations and the devotion to diatonic harmonies make it a joy to those who have not experienced the modern composer's demands to sing any interval in any odd time.

The composer has introduced rhythm and colour which in artistic hands make the whole story sparkle with interest, as did those Red Indian stories we all used to enjoy when very young. For its interpretation then one has to approach it as something unique.

evolved for herrings which makes them more palatable to the modern generation. We do not pretend to understand why it should be recorded, with every manifestation of delight, that an advance has been made in the analysis of the respiratory mechanism of the potato, but we presume that even potatoes have a right to share in our experts' meticulous scrutiny of animals, vegetables and minerals. The item which perhaps deserves the highest award in this exhaustive report is the calm announcement that someone has at last succeeded in preparing in quantity a drug called "Succinylidomethylamide-p-arsonic acid." We can well believe that it is of remarkable potency.

SITUATION IN KWEICHOW

Towns Retaken From The Reds

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Mar. 7.

In spite of the tense situation in Kweichow, Lieut.-Gen. Chang Tai, commanding officer of the Second Army, two divisions of which are in Kwangsi, stated today that he had received no instructions to send his troops from Kwangsi to Kweichow. He said that the fifth division and sixth division of the Second Army are remaining at Liu Chow and Wu Hsuan in Kwangsi for the time being.

Replying to numerous telegrams from public bodies in Kweichow urging for reinforcements to that province, Generals Li Chung Jen and Pai Hsueh Hsi, Commander-in-Chief and Executive Officer respectively of the Kwangsi armies, said that they are most willing to render help but cannot move their troops to Kweichow until they are ordered to do so by the central military authorities. At present the Kwangsi forces are located on the North-west borders.

The report that General Li Chung Jen still has his Seventh Army at Kweichow, provincial capital of Kweichow, is absolutely without foundation. Weyang is in the hands of the Nanking troops. General Wu Chi Wai, a commander of a Nanking column, warned Kwangsi forces not to move into the Kweichow border without the approval of General Chiang Kai Shek.

Latest reports from Kweichow stated that Tung Tzu and Tsun Yi in Northern Kweichow have been retaken by the Nanking forces from the Reds. Over 500 Communists soldiers were reported to have been drowned in making a futile attempt to cross the Wu Kiang River.

TOURISTS IN CANTON

Business People From North

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Mar. 7.

A party of twenty-eight tourists who recently visited Philippine Islands are now visiting places of interest in Canton to-day as guests of the Canton Municipal Government. At noon they attended a luncheon at the new municipal building given in their honour by Mayor Liu Chi Men.

This afternoon the South-west Aviation Corporation invited the visitors for an aerial trip aboard their mail and passenger planes, so that they might have a bird's eye view of the city. This afternoon the party will return to Hong Kong by train en route to Shanghai.

The party includes several ladies. Mr. Wang Hsiao Lai, leader of the expedition, said that their trip to the Philippines was to explore trade possibilities there. He said that the party was much impressed by the progress in education, communication and general advancement in the Islands. He added that the Chinese residents there are affected by the depression.

Most of the members of the group are prominent Shanghai merchants and financiers. The secretary is Mr. C. P. Chu of the World Students' Alliance, Shanghai. Dr. C. T. Wang, former minister of foreign affairs, was among the party but did not come to Canton, having gone to Singapore.

The general meeting of Shareholders of the H.K. Fire Insurance Co., Ltd. will be held at Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd. on Friday, March 23 at noon.

Only one case of scarlet fever was reported to the health authorities during the 24 hours ended March 6.

The R.M.S. Empress of Britain is expected to arrive in Hong Kong on Saturday, March 23 at 8 a.m. on her round the world cruise.

The annual dinner of the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders will be held on March 22 at 8 p.m.

The Hong Kong dollar advanced a farthing yesterday to 1/11, but the market was somewhat uncertain. Business rates varying from 1/11 to 2/0 1/2 were quoted.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

(BY "NO QUARTER")

The clock struck twelve. Up and down the dimly lit room paced a wild and mournful figure. Dressed in a long black cloak, with auburn hair to his shoulder, he would pause at intervals spellbound. Then he would throw up his head with a weird moan of despair and resume his pacing.

You have guessed, my friends. It was NO QUARTER seeking inspiration for his weekly pearl.

So many people think that we writer fellows just sit down and bang away at a typewriter and hey presto! the whole thing's done. A hollow mocking laugh. An owl's hoot and a bag of biscuits! Believe me, each word leaves the pen (yes, pen I said) with a rusty grinding noise like the love-song of a peacock. Each word is weighed: would "this" or "that" be more effective here.

But enough. It has been an exciting week. Do you know that Wednesday was not only Ash Wednesday, but Ching Che, The Excited Insects. An appropriate festival I thought, as I looked on Ice House Street, with brokers grubbing like angry ants, picking up the dollar for a few minutes, then dropping it for some other termite moron to take over.

O, Nimm Nimm.

COMMON CENTS
It is gratifying to note that one undertaking at least in Hong Kong has benefited by its sound policy of preserving the taipan tradition. I refer of course to the recent action of the Peak Tram in tightening up the accessibility of ten cent seats on the tram, and forcing the public to travel decently or not at all.

So successful, apparently, has this measure proved from a financial point of view, that a new and palatial station is to be built at Garden Road, containing shops, studio-flats, and a pent-house. I have heard (though I cannot answer for the truth of this), that a restaurant, a bridge room, and a swimming pool will also be included in the ultimate building, and Peak dwellers will be able to spend a pleasurable day without going any nearer to their offices than Garden Road.

We live in a wonderful age.

I wonder why the devil you must mention them at all.

Please realize that you yourself are chronically rude.

REBELS HOLDING THEIR GROUND

Operations Impeded By Bad Weather

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Athens, March 6. Kondylis' whose action against the insurrectionists is greatly impeded by bad weather in Macedonia, announces that he has made up his mind to force a decisive battle at Serres. On Tuesday night heavy snow and rain fell persistently while on Wednesday a thick fog prevailed. The rebels are massed about ten miles away. Those actually bearing weapons are said by Kondylis not to exceed 2,000 men which is increase to the maximum of 10,000 against which the Government can, if necessary, throw 100,000 into the field. Kondylis telegraphed to Premier Saldaris that the discipline and spirit of the Government troops were exemplary and that he guarantees victory immediately the weather permits operations.

In Athens itself, all traces of the insurrection have been eradicated and over 1,000 persons have been arrested on suspicion. All army officers not enjoying the complete confidence of the Government have been replaced by others. The arsenal is quickly repairing the vessels damaged by the insurgents.

The Government passed a law on Wednesday confiscating the property of all insurrectionists and their relatives. All Greek ships are forbidden to enter Greek ports while foreign vessels are subjected to strict scrutiny.—Transocean Kuo Min

SERRES BOMBED

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, March 7, 4.30 p.m.)

Athens, March 7. The situation in northern Greece is still undecided, the decisive battle between the loyal troops and the insurrectionists scheduled for yesterday not having taken place. Serres has been bombed anew by Government troops. No news has been forthcoming from the rebel ships.

The War Minister, Kondylis who is in charge of the operations declared that the whole matter is now only a question of time. If the weather improves to-day (Thursday) he will order a further advance to crush the rebels. Despite the severe cold, the advance will not be suspended and the supply units with foodstuffs are not affected.

Messages from eastern Macedonia say that the situation of the insurrectionists is hopeless and—according to War Minister Kondylis—the same may be said of the front at Urilso which is more or less losing its martial appearance. Yesterday the Government planes defying all danger flew as low as twenty metres over Serres, bombing the barracks and railway stations and gathering of troops, inflicting serious damage and producing great confusion.—Transocean Kuo Min

BOTH SIDES PREPARING

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, March 7, 7.30 p.m.)

Vienna, March 7. The latest reports from Athens indicate that the decisive battle near Serres, Macedonia which has hitherto been delayed by bad weather conditions is expected to take place within the next 24 hours, the opposing forces, being drawn up on both sides of the River Struma. The Government as well as the revolutionary forces are greatly increasing their strength by mobilisation, but the War Minister, Kondylis expressed his opinion that the insurgents are unable to raise more than 10,000 men in Macedonia who, if necessary, can be opposed by 100,000 Government troops.

The Greek Government has taken every precaution by partly dismantling the machinery on board the warships whose crews are considered unreliable so as to prevent their putting out to sea. All merchant vessels have been seized in order to employ them for transport of troops. All motor buses and motor cars plying between Athens and Piraeus have likewise been commandeered.

Reports from Crete state that the revolutionary government of that island has a well-equipped army of 20,000 men, mostly volunteers. Venizelos appears to have relied on Premier Saldaris not daring to assume the responsibility of destroying the mutinous warships.

which hitherto have formed the pride of the entire Greek nation. All banks and schools remained closed on Thursday.—Transocean Kuo Min

REQUEST TO EGYPT

Alexandria, Mar. 6. The Greek Legation here has been notified from Athens that the war vessels in the hands of the insurrectionists would probably attempt to enter the port of Alexandria. Acting on instructions, the Greek Minister called on the Egyptian Premier demanding that if the revolutionaries bring the vessels into Alexandria they should be disarmed immediately in accordance with the requirements of international law.—Transocean Kuo Min

NO SURRENDER

Athens, March 7. Reports of an air raid by Government planes on the Macedonian coastal town of Kavalla indicate that the rebels met the government's ultimatum with a refusal to surrender.

A Kavalla message states that fifty thousand inhabitants were seized with panic when planes suddenly appeared out of the blue and rained bombs on the town and raked the streets with machine guns from a low altitude. It is believed that Government forces have now crossed the Struma in execution of a threat to launch an offensive after a preliminary artillery bombardment of the enemy position.—Reuter

THEFT OF GOLD AT CROYDON

Investigations By Scotland Yard

London, March 7. Considerable mystery surrounds the theft of £21,000 worth of gold from Croydon aerodrome.

Although no keys are missing, an official found the inner steel door of the strong room open, but the outside oak door was locked. The removal of the boxes also is puzzling since their weight makes them difficult to handle and could not be removed from the aerodrome without a car or van; thus attracting attention.

Half a dozen officials on duty at the aerodrome all might long and the superintendent have been held by one of Scotland Yard's "Big Five" who is in charge of investigations.—Reuter

The gold was contained in three boxes which were stolen between 10 p.m. on Tuesday when the safe was locked and 7 a.m. on Wednesday when it was opened.

One box contained £6,000 in English sovereigns. The second box contained bar gold and the third American gold dollars. The gold should have been despatched to Paris on Wednesday.

Mr. Yokotake, who is on home leave, urged the necessity of watchful waiting for Japanese merchants and industrialists in dealing with the proposal of Sino-Japanese co-operation. HIGH COST EDUCATION

Estimates For Year Issued

London, Mar. 7. The estimates of expenditure on education, issued this morning, show a net increase of £1,074,364 as compared with that of last year, the total for 1935 being £54,103,959 as against £53,029,595 for 1934. The latter figure, however, included two supplementary estimates totalling £1,760,034 so that this year's estimates show an increase of £2,834,398 compared with the 1934 estimates.

The biggest increase is £945,769 for the Board of Education itself. This is mainly accounted for by the larger estimates for primary and higher education, the total for the former being £32,008,650, an increase of £594,050, and for the latter £9,804,325, an increase of £284,200. An additional sum of £228,800 is allocated to scientific investigation, making the total for this activity £228,373. A further £122,206 more is allocated to public education in Scotland, making the total £7,035,393. Pensions for teachers show an increase of £180,200 to £3,965,200.—British Wireless

CAUSE FOR SUSPICION AND MISTRUST

The "Times" Comment On Defence Estimates

London, March 7. In an analysis of the Defence Services Estimates which show for the Navy, the Army and the Air Force a total increase in expenditure of nearly £104 million, the "Times" notes that the actual expansion is limited to the increase in the Air Force already announced by Mr. Baldwin last July and reaffirmed last November when it was stated that 25 new squadrons would be created before the end of 1936.

The expenditure upon these new squadrons and the necessary ground accommodation and equipment represents an increase in strength, but practically the whole of the remaining increase in expenditure represents merely replacement, renovation or re-equipment of the existing forces.

The White Paper on the defence, says the "Times," was obviously prepared some time ago when the result of the Government's inquiries on the state of the defence services came to hand and no part of it was prompted by, or had reference to the projected visit of the ministers to Berlin. The passages which have incurred German criticism were in substance a repetition of the sentiments expressed at the time of Germany's withdrawal from the League and of Mr. Baldwin's plain account of German rearmament—an account communicated to the German government before it was made last November. These sentiments were expressed then and have been reiterated now and not from any discrimination against Germany but from a desire to show how her absence from the International Council must inevitably give rise to suspicion and mistrust.

Plain speaking in these matters, says the "Times," is infinitely to be preferred to concealment. The British desire for a collective peace system is just as intense as ever and this desire is the dominant note of the White Paper as it is clear if all of it, and not merely isolated passages, are read.—British Wireless

Rumjahn's Easy Victory

In the only match played in the local Open Singles Championship yesterday, S. A. Rumjahn scored an easy victory over H. Y. Ho, whom he defeated by the score of 6-2, 6-1. The encounter was too one-sided to be of any interest. The points that Ho registered were through mistakes made by Rumjahn. Rumjahn showed great weakness in his service and during the game he dropped many points through double faults. Rumjahn mastered the overhead shots perfectly and during the whole course of play, he made only one mistake when using this stroke. His volleying was most accurate, but his forehand drives were weak; his backhand strokes were better. Ho was very weak, and seemed to be nervous throughout. Rumjahn won three games in succession in the first set when Ho was very weak, and seemed to be nervous throughout. Rumjahn won three games in succession in the first set when Ho was very weak, and seemed to be nervous throughout.

In the second set, Rumjahn scored three games in a row again and Ho won the next, but the 1-1 R. C. player reached the seventh game without reply from the Chinese player.

GOOD TRADE RETURNS

Railway Dividends.

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 16.

The preliminary figures of overseas trade in January show that British exports amounted to $35,481,000, or $3,872,000 higher than for January, 1934, which contained the same number of working days. The January total is $2,472,000 larger than the monthly average figure in 1934.

The rise was again largely due to increased shipments of manufactured articles. Re-exports were nearly $1,000,000 higher than a year ago at $5,034,000.

Imports amounted to $21,831,000, which is $2,840,000 lower than a year ago but $903,000 higher than the monthly average in 1934.

The apparent adverse balance of trade for the month, leaving out movements of coin and bullion, was nearly $7,500,000 lower at $21,416,000. The monthly average figure for the year 1934 was $23,747,000.

L.M.S. and Great Western

Dividend statements for 1934 were issued yesterday by two more home railway companies, namely, the London Midland and Scottish Railway and the Great Western Railway. In both cases an increase in gross receipts was only partly offset by larger working expenses. The L.M.S. is paying 1 1/2 per cent. on its Four per cent. 1923 Preference stock, which means that $40,183,987 of such stock receives less than half its due rate, while over $25,000,000

At the conclusion of the day's enjoyable meeting, the prizes were distributed by Mrs. S. W. Tso, wife of the Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso.

The Rev. E. G. Stewart on behalf of those present, thanked the competitors for the excellent afternoon of sport they had provided. He also expressed his hearty thanks to the following, who generously contributed to the prize fund or presented prizes:—

Of Ordinary stock goes dividendless. A year ago, however, no payment at all was made on the 1923 Preference stock. With the aid of transfers from investment profits realized and from contingency fund, the Great Western is paying 3 per cent. as before, on its Consolidated Ordinary stock, though it earned only about one per cent.

"Go away!" the Duke roared when he heard the rapping. Instead, Polverino entered quickly.

"I told you to go—"

"My Lord, the Duchess is here!"

Polverino said, softly.

The Duke got to his feet at once, in a cold sweat of fear.

"Here," he cried.

"Yes, my Lord."

"Here in the palace, now?"

"She this moment arrived with her Ladies-in-Waiting—"

"Well by the Saints—now I ask you—why couldn't—look here, Polverino, why don't you suggest something?"

"I suggest the maiden out of here at once, my Lord."

"Certainly. To be sure. Get her out of sight."

Angela snatched at another suggested cake.

"I don't want to go, Bumpy!" she said.

"Hush! I warned you—not 'Bumpy' in public. Go and I shall see you soon. Take her on the balcony, no, in the gardens, oh, any place, Polverino."

Polverino led Angela away.

The Duke sat down and wiped his perspiring face. The Duchess came noiselessly around the nook where the table was. She was removing her gloves, not having waited a moment, since she was not in the least deceived by Alessandro.

"How lovely!" the Duchess cooed, "you were waiting for me, my Lord."

The Duke leaped to his feet, shivered a trifle and bowed low.

"Of course—I mean, no—it was good of you to come here and surprise me in my loneliness. The—conference—matters came up—it will have to be held later."

"I shall have let you know that I was coming out here," the Duchess said, as if reproaching herself.

"Indeed, my Lady, and you should!" the Duke agreed, fervently. The Duchess entirely composed and smiling, moved toward the table and looked it over.

"But then, you did expect me!" she exclaimed, indicating the table. "This charming little tete-a-tete." She uncovered a few of the dishes. "So thoughtful, and you ordered my favourite dishes. It is a pity I am too exhausted to eat them."

Suspicious

This was too much innocence and the Duke became painfully suspicious.

"How did you chance to come here, my Lady?" he asked.

"Oh, I was restless and thought you might be returning late and I came out for quiet. Besides, there were some things I wanted sent back to the city. Tell me, are you in pain? From your expression I fear that your gout may be worse."

"No—that is, a mere touch of it."

"So sorry, my Lord. I shall see that you have a proper sleeping potion."

The troubadours began singing again and the Duke would have strangled them. Inwardly he cursed Polverino for not having the wit to send them away.

"Why the music beneath the balcony, my Lord?" she asked, and this time there was a trace of sharpness in her voice as she pretended anxiety over the Duke's condition.

"Why—er—I suppose—Oh, they must have happened along—"

The Duchess went swiftly out on the balcony. It would be fatal to her plans to have troubadours there when Benvenuto came to deliver the key.

"Begone!" she called down to the musicians. "How can His Excellency sleep with all this noise!"

She returned to the room and saw the Duke sitting there, nervously biting at his nails and then sniffing from one of his bottles of perfume.

"What would you do without me here to look after you, my Lord," she said, sweetly. "Those stupid troubadours wandering in here to disturb you, and you too tender-hearted to send them away!"

She closed the doors to the balcony and drew the heavy curtains over the glass. This would prevent him from seeing Benvenuto when he came up to the balcony.

At the right were the Duke's chambers; at the left the chambers of the Duchess, and to the rear of this cosy room were the rooms for the Ladies-in-Waiting.

"You are right. I must retired to quiet and rest," the Duke agreed, and you also, since you are so exhausted."

This, he hoped, would give him an opportunity to be with Angela again.

"You must have a sleeping potion, not only for your gout," the Duchess declared, "but because, otherwise, indigestion might keep you awake, since you have eaten two dinners as I set."

M. TITULESCU'S NEW POST

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Feb. 16.

It is rumoured that the telephone line between M. Laval's home and St. Moritz, where M. Titulescu likes to winter, has been busy of late.

M. Titulescu occupies a far more important position—in European politics than is implied by his position as Rumanian Foreign Minister.

He is President of the Little Entente, and has now been chosen President of the Balkan Entente.

These countries altogether have a population of 6 millions—equivalent to that of Germany.

When the Franco-Italian Pact was concluded a month ago, it was thought that M. Titulescu's personal prestige might suffer. M. Titulescu, however, is not easily eclipsed.

Nor is M. Litvinoff, who stands with him. Hence a stiffening of the Balkan attitude towards France has been seriously disturbing the Quai d'Orsay.

M. Laval, however, always holds the ace of trumps in dealing with his Balkan allies. He controls the purse-strings.

"Oh—er—of course not. What an idea, my Lady. Ottaviano dined with me."

"How strange! I saw him in the dining hall, eating with the others of the court."

"You did? How extraordinary—I mean—well, the way Ottaviano eats—the man has a tapeworm!"

The Duke settled back in his chair, proud of that one.

"You must retire at once, for your health's sake, my Lord."

NEWSPAPERMEN'S TOUR OF KIANGSI

International Journalists Visit War Areas

Nanchang: Capital of Kiangsi, Shanghai, Feb. 28. Nanchang, strategic capital of Kiangsi Province, a city of 268,000 inhabitants and Headquarters of the Generalissimo in the Communist-bandit suppression campaign, is reached by a short railway from Kluksang. The Nan-Hsun line, says those who had travelled on it before, is vastly improved these days. The four hours taken to travel its 128 kilometers from terminus to terminus must seem a little better than a fast crawl to folks used to the many speedy modes of modern travel. To most of us, however, it was good enough to be able to travel in a spotlessly clean and comfortable train, with courteous attendants who had learned by rote the exhortations of the New Life, over the only stretch of railroad operating at present in Kiangsi.

Kiangsi's Isolation Giving Way
In its isolation, Kiangsi is unenviable. This is an important factor, responsible for the firm grip the Communist-bandits were able to have of that unfortunate province for the past seven years. At the moment, excepting those specially privileged to travel there by airplane and to make use of the military air-field for landing, travellers by the speediest ordinarily available modes of transit require an average of three days to reach Nanchang from Shanghai—about forty hours being spent on railway and steamer. If we were to look for a bright spot in the dark and bloody history of Communist-banditry in Kiangsi, it is that the days of good transit facilities will soon dawn there, bringing in their wake more prosperous times consequent on the ability of the inhabitants to bring their produce cheaply and rapidly to the sea. Good motor-roads are fast extending their tentacles in all directions, and before many more months will link up with the trunk systems of the six contiguous provinces surrounding Kiangsi. But more of Kiangsi roads anon.

Railway Construction
Railway construction, too, is helping to break up Kiangsi's isolation. The Chekiang-Kiangsi main line, of which a part is already completed and the remainder under construction, will connect east and west China south of the Yang-Tze, and traverse the middle of Kiangsi. The Kiangsi section will be known as the Yu-Ping Railway, for whose construction the National Railway Administration and the Provincial Governments of Kiangsi and Chekiang have formed a company capitalized at $60,000,000. From Yu-Shan in the East—terminus of a 345 kilometers railway completed last year from Hangchow, the Chekiang capital—the Yu-Ping line will join the existing Nan-Hsun Railway at Nanchang, and then continue westward to Pinghsians, near the Hunan border, whence a line now runs through Changsha northwards to link up with the Peiping-Hanchow Railway. Work on the Yushan-Nanchang section, 300 kilometers in length, has already begun.

Birthplace of New Life Movement
Nanchang's present-day claim to fame rests, not only on its having been the Headquarters of General Chiang Kai Shek in the Communist-Suppression Campaign, where all the strategy of meeting and triumphing over the Red offensive in all its forms was mapped out, but also on its being the birthplace of the New Life Movement. First announced by General Chiang publicly in February 1934, the Movement has spread with the rapidity of wild-fire. Whether it has yet gained a firm enough hold on the life and habits of the Chinese people in other provinces, so as to be self-perpetuating without the necessity of frequent official exhortations and demonstrations by precept, may be a rather debatable point. But in Kiangsi, at least, one cannot move about anywhere to-day without being frequently and impressively reminded of its growing significance in the life of the people. Streets and villages may perhaps be expressly given a good cleaning by an official fiat with the very understandable intention of creating a good impression upon the tourists, but no mandate, however peremptory, can effect an immediate change in the life and habits of country people. Yet a perceptible change has undoubtedly taken place. Crowds, whether thronging the pavements of cities, or going about their business in distant villages, are quiet and orderly, politely unobservant of the presence of the foreigner, who must be a rare treat for the country folks at least to see. Children are impenetrable the world over, if only by reason of their unrestrained gesticulations and audible revelations of the thoughts that pass through the infant brain. However, the Kiangsi children comported themselves with the sober dignity of little gentlemen. Whether alone or in group, they would bow solemnly to the strangers from abroad with a seriousness in their little visages that almost put the latter out of countenance. If you were expecting a little bundle of mischief to act true to type and instead find yourself face to face with a small edition of a polished Chinese gentleman, you can imagine how amusing and delightful that experience can be. That is New Life.

New Life in Practice
Everywhere you go in Kiangsi, you are confronted with the New Life in practice. Habit, fostered at the beginning by a certain amount of compulsion, as most good habits need, is fast becoming second nature. Cleanliness of person and home, is being appreciated for its own sake, and for its benefit to health. It is no longer dubbed a troublesome, new-fangled cult, for which the foreigners are responsible. Student workers, young, self-sacrificing and still retaining some of their original ideals, go down to the masses of illiterate, almost insensible peasants. They mix, but do not lose themselves by fusion with those they are seeking to elevate. Of these student "missionaries" of the New Life there will be further examples when we come to the rural welfare centres. More also, of the revivalism of faith and optimism, and of the moral and intellectual uplift movement, the accomplishment of which is sought through "the little ones."

Impression of the Peasant Population

Nanchang's atmosphere is definitely militarist, as even Kluksang was, until barely a couple of years ago, when the railway station of that Yang-Tze port was piled almost sky-high with barbed wire, munitions and other supplies for the front. But that atmosphere is rapidly giving way to that of peace, and of silent determination to go ahead with the task of repairing the havoc and devastation that the retreating Red hordes had left in their wake. The economic life of the province, whose population had been estimated at $21,000,000 before Communism reared its ugly head, had for seven years been out of joint. Only 18,000,000 remain to-day, no less than 1,000 having perished by the sword. No wonder the people appear to-day pathetically spiritless, cowed, almost, it would seem, unfeeling and unthinking—like the brute, and the beast in the field, only they are tamer and less likely to strike back, even if driven into the corner. One's impression of the inarticulate masses as a whole is of a people used to stoically awaiting a fate they feel it futile to fight against, and because the very process of thought must bring only despair and pain, have become used to unthinking. The assimilation of the rational human to the irrational brute creation, perhaps, helps not only in struggling the brain against suicidal despair, but also in deadening the nerves to physical pain. Under such conditions in the rural districts, then, the authorities are now working, laboriously and systematically gathering up the broken threads of Kiangsi's economic fabric. It is indeed a gigantic task, which requires a constant flow of wealth from the meagre National Treasury, and sometimes the use of extraordinary ways and means to achieve results, justifiable only because of the existence of special conditions. A rough sketch of general conditions and various phases of rehabilitation work in Kiangsi was given us upon the first evening of our arrival in Nanchang, by way of introduction before we commenced our actual investigation tour.

BERLIN BOURSE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, March 6.
The upward movement in share prices, noticeable for some time past, came to a standstill on Wednesday, owing to the pronounced inclination towards profit-taking. The amount of stock offered was not really great but as no strong demand was present, the prices sank all round. Undoubtedly, the investors were made uneasy by the postponement of Sir John Simon's visit to Berlin, the revolution in Greece and the new collapse of the pound sterling. Fixed interest securities were more resistant but the turnover was very restricted.

Call Money 3 1/2 to 4. Young Loan not quoted. Reichs Bank dropped 2 1/8 to 166 3/8. Dywida's declined 1 3/8 to 184. Salendstern's Potash 178 Amer to 148 5/8. German Steel Trusts dropped 6/8 to 73 1/2. German Mineral Oils 7 1/8 lower at 98 7/8. Siemens & Halske un-

UNEASINESS IN LONDON

Flight Of Foreign Capital

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

London, Mar. 6.
Seeing that even on Tuesday the city circles were very sceptical that the momentary recovery of the pound sterling, believed to be due to official intervention, would prove lasting, it was no wonder that the event so disturbing to international affairs as the unexpected publication of the British White Paper and the subsequent indefinite postponement of Sir John Simon's visit to Berlin, should have been followed by a new slump in sterling which on Wednesday touched a low level never known before. The French franc was quoted at 70.89 as against 71.47 on Tuesday. A further cause for the uneasiness in the announcement of the increased expenditure on armaments by £105 million as well as the increase in other budget outlays. The current year's budget closes at the end of March with the prospective deficit of nearly £22 million as against last year's surplus of 6.4 millions. Hence foreign capital deposited in London on short term is being withdrawn in large amounts, the total flights in French francs alone, according to one estimate, already reaching between four and five milliard francs. While the causes for the new decline in sterling are being eagerly discussed without any definite result being reached, one theory that enjoys certain popularity is that England is determined at last to break down the resistance of the gold block and to prepare, if necessary, to let the pound sink still further whatever sacrifice it may cost for the moment.
